Arthur Z. Davis of Harrisburg, Ill., presented to the committee nine checks which he said were sent by Gov. Lowden's campaign manager to representatives of that campaign in Missouri. They totaled $38,703.

Six of the checks, carrying a total of $32,208 went to E. L. Morse of Kansas City, Davis testified. The first, for $5000, was sent on Dec. 16, 1919, and the last, for $3500, on April 27, 1920. The largest was for $10,000 and went forward last Jan. 2.

The other three, the witness said, were sent out in January. One for $2000 went to Fred Esser of St. Louis, he said; another for $2500 went to Robert Moore, St. Louis, and the third for $2500 went to Nat Goldstein, St. Louis.

Moore testified that the money he received was "to be used to meet campaign expenses, for delegate expenses and anything I saw fit."

CONTEST FROM FLORIDA WORRIES G. O. P. COMMITTEE

Main Point to Be Decided Is Whether There Is in Legal Effect a Republican Party in That State.

MATTER REFERRED TO LEGAL ADVISER

Discussion Promises to Show First Indications on Candidacies of Wood, Lowden and Johnson.

By the Associated Press. CHICAGO, June 1.—Hearings on the claims of contesting delegations to the Republican National Convention today will occupy the attention of the Republican National Committee. A decision in the three-cornered fight in Florida was first on the program and next came the three-cornered contest from the District of Columbia. A special sub-committee composed of Committeesmen Warren of Michigan, Du Pont of Delaware and Harbo of New York spent most of the night examining the law and the facts in the Florida case, and prepared a report on the claims of the contestants and possibly a recommendation for a course of action by the committee.

The Florida case, in which the committee was called upon to decide whether there was, in legal effect, any Republican party in Florida, promised in a sense to show the first indications on the candidacies of Major-General Leonard Wood, Gov. Frank O. Lowden and Senator Hiram Johnson.

Neither Delegation Pledged. None of the three contesting delegations is pledged, but the various members say that the first, or regularly reported delegation headed by National Committeeman Bear of Tampa, is favorable to Gen. Wood; that the second delegation, headed by H. L. Anderson of Jacksonville, is favorable to Senator Johnson; and that the third, headed by A. L. Church of Jacksonville, is favorable to the candidacy of Gov. Lowden.

When the evidence was all in last night, many of the committeemen said that all three delegations seemed to them to be "defunct," but announced that they would depend upon the sub-committee headed by Committeeman Warren, who is acting as legal adviser to the committee, in the contests, to point a way out of the muddle.

In the District of Columbia contests, the issue as to candidacies is less clearly defined, although the Wood leaders are said to be listing the delegation headed by Frank J. Hogan as among those upon whom they would depend in the convention.

Florida Case Worries. With the Florida contest out of the way, the National Committee faces the most acrimonious contest of the year, that from Georgia, where an officially reported delegation, headed by Henry Lincoln Johnson, an Atlanta negro, is counted in the Lowden column and a contesting delegation, headed by Charles Adamson of Cedar Rapids, in the Wood column. Both delegations had figured in the hearings of the Senate subcommittee investigating campaign expenditures.

The next contest on the calendar is from Louisiana where a regularly reported delegation headed by National Committeeman Emil Kuntz is being opposed by a delegation headed by the late Senator John B. Morgan. The contesting delegation is listed among those favorable to the Wood candidacy and to Frank H. Hitchcock.

Arkansas Case Interesting. Arkansas proves troublesome and interesting. Here seven delegates, three of them said to favor Gov. Lowden and the other without presidential preferences, wrangled with each other for a couple of hours. The regular delegation was headed by Wallace Townsend, a vigorous young man who has been awarded the dubious honor of being Republican candidate for Governor there. He captained the Remmel delegation, so-called after the National Committeeman.

The Remmel delegation was made up of white men, opposed to whom were seven negroes headed by John A. Hibbler, a fiery little man who signed at the Remmel folk through a pair of George Harvey bone spectacles. When it came Hibbler's time to present his case, he provided some entertainment by aort, while and made a few friends on the committee, although the ultimate decision was against him. While he was spouting at record-breaking speed, Committeeman Reagenstein Wisconsin broke in to ask Townsend whether negroes were not permitted to vote in Arkansas. Townsend replied that all negroes who paid their poll tax were permitted to vote and participate in party conferences. Hibbler denied this.

"We all ain't given a show by the white Republicans," he shouted. "The crowd ain't got no use for us except when they want us to cast our vote for candidates they pick for office. The meetings that they held to elect the delegates to the National Convention, they held in a hotel which will not admit colored folks. The hotel man wouldn't let us go in. We went home and we held a regular convention as we could and we are entitled to be recognized."

THINGS BEGIN TO STIR AT CANDIDATES' HEADQUARTERS

Chicago Hotels Show First Symptoms of Convention Noise and Confusion—Tentative Program Outlined.

By the Associated Press. CHICAGO, June 1.—While the National Committee is grinding away at the contests things are beginning to stir about the headquarters of the presidential candidates' managers. Chicago hotels, already overcrowded with an abnormal business, are beginning to show the first symptoms of a campaign week of noise and confusion. Headquarters are blossoming out with banners and lithographs, but the campaign managers have not yet emerged from the state of confident predictions. Only two of the candidates—Gov. Lowden and Major-General Wood—are in the city, but Senator Harding and Senator Johnson will arrive later in the week.

Estimates of the probable duration of the convention are as numerous as the candidates are various. Some confident ones have made railroad reservations to return home on Thursday, the attention of the prediction that a presidential candidate probably will be nominated on Friday night and a vice presidential candidate on Saturday seems to be regarded among most of the politicians as probably being more accurate than any others.

Tentative Program. The generally accepted tentative program seems to be Tuesday for preliminary organization and keynote speeches; Wednesday for permanent organization and work of the Resolutions Committee framing the platform; leaving Thursday and Friday for balloting, two days being needed.

All the politicians seem agreed that no one is going to be nominated on the first ballot. Many of them are going so far as to make predictions of what is going to happen on the first, second and third. Then come the sanguine predictions and claims of what is going to happen on the fourth.

It took three ballots in 1916 to nominate Charles Evans Hughes, and that was the first time since 1866 that more than one ballot had been required to nominate a candidate.

In 1900 and 1904 the nominations were made by machine. Gen. Wood's Wood Conference Postponed. Senator George M. Moses of New Hampshire, Major-General Wood's Eastern campaign manager, announced this morning that the proposed conference of the managers would not be held until after the contest hearings are completed by the Republican National Committee. "Our interests just now are at the College," said Senator Moses. "The conference can wait until we have finished the more important business out there."

No one has yet been chosen, the Senator said, to manage Gen. Wood's campaign on the convention floor. Harry Daugherty, Senator Warren G. Harding's campaign manager, arrived today and took charge of the Wood campaign.

There has been talk of a showdown between Frank H. Hitchcock and William Cooper Procter, but Mr. Hitchcock's friends declared none would be precipitated by him. Mr. Hitchcock, who has been described as one of agreement with whatever the General's managers decide upon, and his friends are saying today that anyone expecting a rupture in the Wood camp will be disappointed.

Women to Boom Hoover. Ralph Arnold, vice chairman of the Hoover Campaign Committee, who has been long after Hoover's interests in the West, arrived here this morning and took charge of the local headquarters.

He announced that if women from New York, headed by Mrs. Oscar Straus and Miss Edith Morgan would arrive here a few days before the opening of the convention to work for Hoover.

Consequently the General Wood of Philadelphia, who carried the Pennsylvania presidential preference primary, arrived this morning and announced that he had not as yet found anyone to present his name to the convention. Whether or not the Pennsylvania delegation will cast any or all of its 76 votes for him has not been decided, Wood said. He is negotiating with a delegate from another state to make his nominating speech.

Wood is first vice president of the Philadelphia Board of Trade.

WOOD'S BOOM ABOUT TO COLLAPSE FROM OVER-FINANCING

Republican Leaders Also Emphasizing Their Prejudice Against Military Man.

Special to the Post-Dispatch. CHICAGO, June 1.—There is no denying the fact that professional Republican sentiment, as reflected by the members of the National committee and the few delegates now here, is crystallizing against the nomination of Wood.

The most important reason influencing this opinion is that the General's campaign has been heavily overfinanced and is being managed by a deep-seated prejudice in the Middle Western States against the nomination of a military man for the presidency, and a third is born of the conviction that he has no support in the West. The General is the target not only of the supporters of Gov. Lowden, Senator Hiram Johnson and a great array of dark horses, but is opposed by the great

MISSOURI WOMEN DELEGATES WILL SIT IN CONVENTION

Chairman Hays Announces Arrangement by Which Extra Delegates Will Be Seated at Chicago.

STATE SENT EIGHT DELEGATES AT LARGE

Each to Have One-Half Vote—Re-Arrangement With Added Chairs to Affect 56 Delegates.

By a Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

CHICAGO, June 1.—The possibility that Mrs. Venona Swan of Joplin and Mrs. Alice Curtis Moyer-Wing of Greenville, the two women delegates at large from Missouri to the Republican national convention, would be deprived of seats through a National Committee ruling several weeks ago that no "double delegations" would be seated, was removed today by a decision by Chairman Hays of the committee that the difficulties had been ironed out and that all would be permitted to sit in the convention.

Missouri, entitled to four delegates at large, elected eight with one-half vote each to prevent a threatened factional quarrel and to make possible representation for the women, while at the same time taking care of several male politicians with ambitions to be delegates. Soon after this was done the National Committee served notice on Jacob L. Babler, national committeeman from Missouri, that only four of the eight delegates at large would be seated giving as a reason that the committee four years ago had adopted a rule prohibiting the seating of double delegations and requiring that in case of the election by any State of a larger delegation than it was entitled to, a contest should be declared to exist and the committee should determine which of the delegates should be seated.

Women Suspected Plot. Missouri women saw in the situation a "deep plot" by the Republican organization in Missouri to eliminate them. At the State convention Mrs. Swan and Mrs. Meyer-Wing had been chosen delegates after the five white men delegates had been elected, but before the one negro man delegate was chosen. The women expected that the National Committee would instruct the Missouri delegation to choose which four of the eight delegates to seat and they believed confident that the organization politicians in control of party affairs would so manipulate things that the first four men elected would be seated.

Mrs. Swan in an interview in the Post-Dispatch at the time of the meeting of the Missouri Women's Voters League in Joplin, two weeks ago, declared that it looked to her like the delegation in Missouri to the Senate was attempting to drive the women out of the party. She announced her intention of appearing before the Missouri delegation and before the national committee if necessary to make a fight for the women.

"By the time we get through," she said in that interview, "I think these men will know they have been through a fight."

Extra Delegates to Be Seated. After Mrs. Swan's interview Babler became very busy in an effort to straighten out the tangle and to get the entire delegation of eight seated. He is confident that the recent slump in his stock will disappear when the real delegates to the convention show up. They assert that Wood has been too firm a hold on the affections of the people to be defeated through any combination of bosses.

WILSON NOT TO BE PROPOSED FOR A THIRD TERM

Agreement Between President and Chairman Cummings at Conference on San Francisco Convention.

NO PREFERENCE FOR CANDIDATE EXPRESSED

Cummings Goes to San Francisco as Personal Representative of the President.

BY DAVID LAWRENCE, A Special Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, June 1.—The name of Woodrow Wilson will not be presented to the Democratic National convention at San Francisco for a third nomination to the presidency. This much has been agreed upon between the President and Homer Cummings, chairman of the Democratic National Committee, who left here today for San Francisco.

The President at a lengthy conference with Cummings outlined his idea of what the party should stand for in the coming campaign and discussed the kind of platform which, in his judgment, should be adopted. His position was made clear in the letter to Senator Glass of Virginia, endorsing the Virginia platform which declares for the prompt ratification of the peace treaty "without reservations which impair its essential integrity."

As to candidates, Mr. Wilson will express no preference. He is confident that the bridge when the convention assembled will see that path to victory lies only in a steadfast adherence to the principles of the Democratic administration of the last eight years.

The President's own status is unchanged from that which it has been for months. He deems a statement by him of the reasons why he will not be a candidate for a third term to be unnecessary.

If the convention should reach a deadlock and revert to Wilson as the only man to make the fight on the treaty issue there will be ample time to consider the question of a third term. But there is no present prospect that such a thing will happen and to issue a third term declaration might be construed as an expectation that the convention might actually reach such a decision. Mr. Wilson prefers modestly to believe no such contingency will arise.

North Dakota Situation. On the other hand, there is one embarrassing situation in connection with the vote of the North Dakota delegation. There is some confusion here about the record. It would appear that the delegation is "uninstructed," but in the primary it is said only the name of Woodrow Wilson was voted for. Some people believe the North Dakota delegation is in duty bound to present the name of Mr. Wilson on the first ballot at least.

Some of the worshippers of President Wilson would be annoyed to have historians note that in the convention following two delegates of Woodrow Wilson, he received the ballot of one State for a third term. This, it is contended, might be construed as an indication of the relative esteem in which the Democratic convention held its leader. Certainly if Mr. Wilson's name is voted on by North Dakota, the record would show the usual large number of ballots for the active contenders like Palmer and McAdoo and a negligible vote for President Wilson himself.

To prevent such a situation from arising, friends of the President will see to it that the North Dakota delegation does not vote for Wilson on the first ballot. Indeed, the present plan is not to allow the President's name to go before the convention at all.

Cummings' Representative. Cummings leaves for San Francisco with a full knowledge of the President's desires. He goes really as the personal representative of the President at the Democratic National Convention. He goes with no plan to dictate the choice of the convention. It is to be a free and independent convention. If the judgment of the President should be

Kentuckian Chief Adviser of Republican Committee

Alvin T. "Tobe" Hert Gaining Reputation for Dynamic Energy and Knowledge of Political Game.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

CHICAGO, June 1.—The leaders of the Republican party assembled in Chicago for their nominating convention next week are more concerned over the absence of a boss than in trying to find a suitable candidate for the presidential nomination.

This fact was pretty clearly established when 53 members of the National Committee met to pass upon contests affecting 137 seats in the convention.

With Senator Crane electing to remain in Boston, Penrose not yet here, William Barnes in temporary seclusions at Albany, and a number of other distinguished leaders who have played prominent parts in past conventions absent for various reasons, the professional representatives of the party entered upon their work under manifest disadvantages.

Aside from Will S. Hays the energetic national chairman, who, according to popular belief, has functioned 100 per cent in his job, there was no boss in sight, though one seemed to be developing in the person of Alvin T. Hert—styled "Tobe," by his familiars.

Hert comes from Kentucky. He is a head taller than Hays, weighs nearly twice as much, and is a combination of dynamic energy and political sagacity. He knows the game from the ground up. He managed the Western end of the Hughes campaign in 1916, and if his advice regarding California had been followed, Hughes probably would have been elected President of the United States.

Hert practically holds Kentucky in the hollow of his hand, and dominates to a large extent some of the other mid-Western states under agreements negotiated with their local overiors. His most recent achievement, that attracted the attention of the professional players in the Republican game, was to swing Kentucky into the Republican column three years ago by a record-breaking majority.

Since then he has been gradually and steadily developing as a leader of the first rank in the national affairs of the party. He is a man of large business affairs, tireless and resourceful in his political ventures, which he executes with breezy and genial Western wholesomeness. Hert seems to carry about with him a mental card index of everybody of importance in the Republican party. Who's Who and up to date has not made a single misstep. With the wanted, Cummings will be on the spot to answer questions. There is only one thing the President does want and that is the selection of a candidate who can make the fight on the platform that is to be written. He doesn't want to see a man named who will equivocate or back-track. And who better Mr. Wilson? "I'm going to address a letter to the Democratic National Convention at the psychological moment or whether he perceives his views to be expressed by Homer Cummings, who is to be chairman of the convention itself at its opening, the fact is that there will be enough Wilson men in that convention to carry through the Wilson point of view on the peace treaty."

All the talk of revolt at San Francisco on the treaty question is beginning to fade away. Some exceptions will no doubt be taken here and there by delegates which have in state convention shown only a lukewarm interest in the Wilsonian argument on the peace treaty. But it would be a most extraordinary surprise and a reversal of every expectation if the Democratic convention did not adopt by overwhelming vote the Wilson platform on the peace treaty. That in itself is said to be all that the President wishes. He is represented as wishing to remain aloof from the question of personalities.

Perhaps if his own son-in-law, William Gibbs McAdoo, were not a candidate, it might be different, but the President is too shrewd a politician to influence a convention in which a member of his own family is interested. If Mr. McAdoo were chosen by the free action of the convention, too, it would be easier for Mr. Wilson to support him in the campaign itself.

But the interesting thing is that the President hasn't lifted a finger thus far to help Mr. McAdoo or any retirement of the old-time bosses who are passing from the stage. Hert seems to figure conspicuously in the affairs of the party in the future.

Turned to for Advice. It is to this amiable and rotund Republican from Kentucky that most of the members of the National Committee turn for advice and counsel. It was from him that they secured their sailing orders. And it was because his advice was sought that the work of preparing for the big event next week was instituted with a hitch or scandal of any kind.

As far as can be learned, Hert has no personal candidate for President. If he favors any one of the aspirants, he has most artfully concealed the fact. He seems to be intent on whipping the party into shape, healing up the old sores left from the Roosevelt revolt in 1912, placating the disintegrating Progressive sentiment and keeping the eyes of the lady leaders off the machinery which supplies the tricks of the political trade.

It was Hert, not Chairman Hays, who rounded up the national committeemen and gave them some valuable advice designed to open the door to Republicans of all shades and prevent any presidential aspirant from getting the best or the worst of the undertakings of the National Committee. The team work between the national chairman and the man who most nearly fills the role of party boss was completely harmonious and admirably effective.

President Proposes to Send Hospital Ships, Nurses, Physicians and Medical Supplies.

By the Associated Press.

VERA CRUZ, June 1.—President Wilson has offered to send hospital ships, nurses, doctors and medical supplies to Vera Cruz immediately to assist in combating the bubonic plague which has appeared here, 11 authenticated cases having developed to date and five deaths resulted.

The history of the outbreak appears to date back to May 15 when the first case is believed to have developed. The victim in this case died May 22 and the second victim May 24.

Eleven Cases Since May 27. Up to that time it had not been suspected that the disease from which the deaths occurred was of the bubonic type, although the symptoms now described indicate this to have been the case. May 27, however, another case of the same nature appeared, and upon thorough examination it was found to be bubonic.

Since that date there have been found the 11 improved cases noted, five of the 11 victims dying. Judging from the individuals attacked and the location of their homes it seems to be established that the focal point of the outbreak is the warehouses of one of the docking companies. It is considered certain that rats transmitted the plague, as recently a number of dead rodents have been found near these warehouses.

Cut Off From Republic. Vera Cruz is already completely cut off from the rest of the Republic. Relief has already begun to arrive from the outside, however, a train from Mexico City coming in last night with representatives of the sanitary corps and material with which to fight the plague.

In the opinion of the medical authorities the plague has not yet attained the character of an epidemic and they believe it can easily be controlled by taking the proper measures to combat it. Fumigation of the freight warehouses already has been begun, as has the cleaning up of dwellings and the burning of wooden houses near the central point of the outbreak.

pear to be back to May 15 when the disease was first reported.
The victim in this case was the second victim

in Cases Since May 27.
At that time it had not been known that the disease from deaths occurred was of this type, although the now described indicate have been the case. May 27, another case of the same disease, and upon thorough examination it was found to be du-plague. The young man had just stepped from a Manchester car when the automobile struck him. He was dragged about 40 feet and died in a few minutes.

Testimony at the inquest confirmed that Mrs. Harsh said the young man stepped from the front platform of the car, whereas the motorman denied this, and the conductor said he left by the rear door, as is required by the rules of the Manchester line. Mrs. Harsh's contention was that, knowing of the rule, she did not expect anyone to leave by the front door.

Mrs. Harsh's sister-in-law, Miss Edith Harsh of 554 Cabana avenue, and another young woman, were with her in the machine, which she said was running at 20 miles an hour. A fireman, who saw the accident, estimated the speed at 25 miles an hour.

returned a verdict of accidental death. The body was sent to East St. Louis, and will be taken to Ullin, Ill., for burial, by the young woman's parents, Mr. and Mrs. George Whittaker. She was employed at the barracks by the United States

Mrs. Tullock was riding on a tandem cycle behind Edward Miller, 505 Illinois avenue, East St. Louis, with Memorial day exercises. As the cycle started out of the post grounds by the north road the collision occurred and she was thrown off, suffering a fracture of the skull at the base. The driver of the automobile said the motor cycle ran into the car. The driver of the motor cycle could not give an explanation of the accident. No arrest was made.

YOUTH AND WIDOW KILLED IN COUNTY AUTO ACCIDENTS

John Heath Struck by Car Driven by Mrs. George Harsh at Oak and Poplar Avenues, Webster Groves.

CORONER RETURNS AN OPEN VERDICT

Mrs. Grace Tullock Dies at Jefferson Barracks After Being Thrown From Motorcycle in Collision.

Two automobile fatalities occurred in St. Louis County yesterday, one in Webster Groves and one at Jefferson Barracks.

John Heath, 18 years old, a student at St. Louis University, son of Richard Heath of Oak and Poplar avenues, Webster Groves, was killed by an automobile driven by Mrs.
George Harsh of 34 Swon avenue, wife of a grain broker, at Lockwood and Gray avenues. A coroner's jury rendered an open verdict, not assigning blame for the fatality, but leaving the grand jury to take up the case if it desires.

The young man had just stepped

Daughter of George J. Gould and Youth With Whom She Eloped

MR. and MRS. CARROLL E. WAINWRIGHT

This photograph was made while Mr. and Mrs. Wainwright were riding in a boardwalk chair at Atlantic City, where they are spending their honeymoon. Mrs. Wainwright is the former Miss Edith C. Gould, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George J. Gould. Young Wainwright is 21 and the son of Mr. Carl F. Wolff of New York. He is a Yale undergraduate.

The young couple eloped from New York Tuesday created a stir in the smart set. They were married at Elkton, Md. Parents of both

Moore and Goldstein Testify That They Got Lowden Money

was no trouble," asked Senator Reed. "It is usually the way," Moore replied.

"Mr. Babler was there. He's the head man, isn't he?" Senator Reed continued. "No, he is not the head man in St. Louis," Moore replied.

Asked by Senator Reed what he had done with the $2500, Moore said he had put it in a bank to his account, but held it tight.

"Do you know anybody else down there who has gotten the money and hasn't yet made up his mind how to vote?" continued Reed. "I do not."
"Were you surprised at the ease with which that money came?" "I was a little surprised by the checks," Moore replied.

"You've told no other human being that you intended to give it back in case you didn't vote for Lowden?"
"I don't believe the question was ever asked me. The statement I made was that in the event I didn't want the money and Gov. Lowden was not nominated, I would return it."

"I suppose that the way of spending this money was to create sentiment for Lowden?" "I suggested to Mr. Babler that it should be used in the election."

Nat Goldstein followed Moore on the stand. He identified himself as a delegate to the Republican national convention from Missouri and told of the circumstances under which $2500 was furnished him from Low-den funds. His story followed closely that given by Moore.

"I told Mr. Babler and Mr. Emmerson that I couldn't see anything against Gov. Lowden," he said. "We talked about the causes and conventions. They talked about money and I laughed at that and said there wouldn't be a dollar required." Explaining political canvassers and election methods in St. Louis, he said that "if Gov. Lowden were nominated, a good deal of money could be spent. That was all that was said then."

"Shortly after that I got a telephone message from Mr. Emmerson to meet the Governor," he continued. "There never was one word of money spoken with the Governor."

"Told to Deposit It."
"When Mr. Babler, a few days later, called Mr. Moore and myself over and gave us the checks, we were told to deposit it."
Goldstein said he deposited it in his own bank, "but considered it in the nature of a trust fund."

"But held in your own personal checking account?" Senator Reed interjected. "Yes."

"You expect to return the $2500?"
Chairman Kenyon asked.
"I do, unless Gov. Lowden is nominated," the witness replied. "I've never said I intended to vote for Lowden."

"You gentlemen don't understand the systems of political organiza-
"Oh, no, we are mere novices," Chairman Kenyon assured him.
"If this money had been spent," the witness went on to say, "it would have been turned over to the district treasurer of my committee."

Senator Edge, Republican, New Jersey, said the committee was persecuting the witness. Chairman Kenyon then read a newspaper article.
"Why did you deny to the reporter you have received any money?"
Chairman Kenyon asked.

"Know I Made Mistake."
"Because I knew I'd made a mistake," was the answer. The witness added that the money would "have gone to the Congressional Committee, but the time wasn't ripe."

"After taking the money you felt you were in honor bound to support Gov. Lowden?" Senator Reed asked.

"If the Missouri delegation meets in caucus, I will abide by that decision."
"But in the caucus you will vote for Lowden?"

"More than likely. If Mr. Low-den is not nominated, it will be instantly returned."

SCHMOLL NOT TO QUIT COMMITTEE, AS KOELN DEMANDS

Chairman Says Voters of 13th Ward Want Him to Retain Place, While Running for Sheriff.

WARD CONTESTS BEING PLANNED

Koeln's Program Is to Keep Others So Busy They Won't Be Able to Give Schmoll Any Aid.

John Schmoll, chairman of the Republican City Committee, will not resign in deference to the wishes of Edmond Koeln City Collector, who yesterday called upon him to do so on the ground that it is unfair for him to retain the office while campaigning for the Republican nomination for Sheriff.

Howard Sidener, prosecuting attorney, is visiting in Indiana and could not be reached for a statement on Koeln's demand that he resign on account of his candidacy for Circuit Attorney.

Schmoll said the people of the Thirteenth Ward had endorsed him and that he would file for re-election as city committee member for that ward.

Koeln said today that the fight would be carried to the wards. Sixteen of the present committeemen are classified as friendly to Schmoll.

Schmoll said contests for committeemen would be started in all the wards and the Schmoll committeemen seeking re-election would find themselves so busy looking after their own affairs that they would not have much time to help Schmoll in his candidacy for Sheriff.

Schmoll to Be Busy.
Schmoll, too, Koeln thinks, will need more than an eight-hour day to attend to his duties as committee chairman.

Director of Public Welfare, president of the Tower Grove Bank and candidate for Sheriff.

Koeln says it is noised around that the plan for Sidener to hold on to the Prosecuting Attorney's job until it is too late for anybody to file and then the city committee will nominate Edward E. Butler.
Hank Weeke's son-in-law. Butler is being trained by Sidener.

When it was discovered that Weeke was an enemy alien, necessitating his surrender not only of the committee but of his job as inspector of weights and measures. Butler was elected to the committee.

Butler practices law, but has had no place in the city government since he started a salaried position as prosecuting attorney pays $5000 a year.

Schmoll for Sidener.
Schmoll says he has not heard of this plan. He is for Sidener for Circuit Attorney, he says, but it is not on account of any plan for the nomination of Butler for Prosecuting Attorney.

Weeke has always been opposed to Sidener, but it is pointed out that he might feel differently if Sidener were to help him financially. That his son-in-law, Butler, could get the nomination for Prosecuting Attorney. It is recalled that when Sid-ener was elected for Circuit Attorney two weeks ago, he had said that the committee was for him.

Koeln is trying to discredit the Weeke-Goldstein faction, which is supporting Schmoll for Sheriff.
Butler is being trained by Sidener.

received. Only those who have reared their children in the best moral and physical surroundings and with a proper understanding of their duty to France are eligible.

To a mother having five children, the youngest of whom is not less than five years of age, a bronze medal will be given. The mother of eight will receive a silver medal,

DEMOCRATS TO ASK BAR ASSOCIATION FOR CANDIDATES

City Committee Will Nominate Only Strong Men in Effort to Beat Machine.

James J. Fitzsimmons, secretary of the Democratic City Committee, said today that the organization, following a custom established several years ago, will ask the St. Louis Bar Association to select Democratic candidates for Judge of the St. Louis Court of Appeals, the three Vacancies on the St. Louis Circuit Court and Judge of Division 2, Court of Criminal Correction. Friday of this week is the last day for filing declarations of candidates.

The Bar Association, at its annual meeting last Thursday, voted to hold primaries in its organization on candidates for judicial offices and to express to the public the views of the association on the qualifications of nominees for such offices.

Fitzsimmons said that the Democratic organization plans to nominate only high class candidates in an effort to defeat Republican machine candidates.

James P. Newell, Public Administrator, and Louis R. Padberg, for Coroner, have the unanimous support of the committee for those two offices, Fitzsimmons said, and an effort is being made to induce Joseph F. Dickman, former Sheriff, to file as a candidate for that office.

RAILROAD TRACKS WASHED OUT BY HEAVY RAINS IN ILLINOIS

Farmer Killed by Lightning Near Mount Vernon—Crops Badly Damaged by Flood.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.
MT. VERNON, Ill., June 1.—The heaviest rain in years fell here last night. At Opdyke, eight miles from here, there was a cloudburst and much of the Louisville & Nashville track was washed out. About six miles south of Mt. Vernon, on the C. & E. I., a quarter to a half mile of track was washed away. L. & N.
trains are being detoured to the west and north are being detoured over the Southern tracks. The work of the farmers in the last 10 days has been undone by the floods, and the damage, it is feared, cannot be replaced in a single year's crops.

Sylvester Reeves, a farmer living south of Mt. Vernon, was killed by lightning in sight of his wife and three children while going to the rescue of his cattle under a tree. The cattle were uninjured.

NO REFERENDUM ON AMENDMENTS, U. S. SUPREME COURT HOLDS

late in the enactment of the laws of a State is derived from the people of the State. But the power to ratify a proposed amendment to the Federal Constitution has its source in the Federal Constitution. The act of ratification by the States derives its authority from the Federal Constitution to which the States and people have like assented.

Any other view might lead to confusion in the manner of ratification of Federal amendments.
The choice of means of ratification was wisely withheld from conflicting action in the several States.

Decision Means Ohio's Ratification of Amendment Will Stand.

By the Associated Press.
COLUMBUS, June 1.—Action of the Supreme Court at Washington today in holding that Federal constitutional amendments cannot be submitted for ratification to a referendum in states having referendum provisions in their Constitutions, means that the vote of the Ohio Legislature in ratifying Federal prohibition and the Federal woman's suffrage amendment will stand.

Loss the Result of Nationalized Operation of Industries.

LONDON, June 1.—The official organ of the Russian Bolshevik Government reports an estimated deficit for 1920 on the operations of nationalized industries of 27,754,700,000 rubles, or about $11,878,350,000, according to the old rating of exchange, a Berlin dispatch to the Exchange Telegraph Co. says.

The total includes 6,650,000,000 rubles spent on official salaries and on organization of the industries, 24,323,000,000 rubles lost owing to production cost exceeding sale prices and 1,210,000,000 rubles spent on political measures necessary to keep the workmen quiet.

WHEN YOUR COMPLEXION BEGINS TO FADE WITH AGE

You Can Preserve That Clear, Smooth Tint of Youth

By the Occasional Use of the BLACK and WHITE Beauty Treatment.

As the years go by, women lose that baby-like softness and the rosy tint which they possess in their childhood days. Face powder, rouge and toilet creams all but hide their complexion—but such results serve only for a few hours.

The Black and White Beauty Treatment will restore that bloom of youth so much desired—make mothers and daughters appear to be sisters—and its use is both safe and delightful. Before retiring, you bathe your face with Black and White Soap, then apply the creamy Ointment and wash off the next morning. You'll be so well pleased with this home beauty treatment that a package of both Black and White Ointment and Soap will always have a place on your dressing table.

Your druggist sells both Black and White Ointment and Black and White Soap at 25c each or the manufacturers will send both to you for 50c.

A sample, literature and Black and White Birthday and Shagun Book will be sent you free if you clip and mail this advertisement to BLACK and WHITE, Box 615, Memphis, Tenn.

New Method Removes

Superfluous Hair Roots!

Have you "tried everything" for that annoying hairy or fuzzy growth and about given up in despair? Well, there's just one thing more to try, and you must try it, because it is the one home treatment that reaches the very root of such troubles. The new process is not to be compared at all with electrolysis, electrical or any other method you've ever heard of. It is different, because it actually removes roots and all—you see the roots with your own eyes.

Just get a stick of phenacetin from your druggist, follow the simple instructions and you will be delighted with the result. Phenacetin is odorless, non-irritating, and can be used with entire safety—you could even eat it with impunity. It is an instantaneous method.

COMMITTEE OF 48 MEMBERS ASKED FOR PLATFORM OPINIONS

Peace Treaty, League and Universal Military Training Among Issues Covered by Questionnaire.

In preparation for its national convention for the formation of a new political party, to be held at Chicago July 16, the Committee of Forty-Eight has sent a questionnaire to its entire membership for opinions on a platform and candidates.

Among the questions asked of the committee members are the following:

"Are you in favor of the peace treaty of Versailles and the present League or Nations?"

"Are you in favor of the present League of Nations with Lodge reservations?"

"Do you favor as a condition of our entering any League of Nations the abolition of secret diplomacy in our own Department of State, so that the people may know the facts concerning the initiation and negotiation of foreign policies?"

"Are you in favor of any League of Nations?"

"Do you favor a plank on international relations as distinguished from confining our declarations to our American economic problems?"

"Do you favor release of political prisoners?"

"Do you favor Universal Military Training?"

"Do you favor universal disarmament?"

"Do you favor a war referendum?"

Members are asked to name their candidates for President and Vice President.

Every member of the committee is eligible as a delegate to the forthcoming convention, which will be held at the Auditorium Hotel in Chicago, subject to approval of the various State committees.

UNSEASONABLE Spring weather and congested railroad transportation caused cancellations to pour in on one of America's best shoe manufacturers. He found himself with this tremendous lot of high-grade Low Shoes, with no chance to dispose of them in a "regular" way. We were one of the few stores which could handle so gigantic a quantity, and the cash price he named was irresistible.

WE announce this sale feeling that we are rendering the women of St. Louis a real service in helping them reduce the high cost of living. We invite the most exacting comparison of styles, qualities and values. When you come here Wednesday you will find a variety that makes provision for every Summer purpose and occasion—and bona fide $10, $12.50, and $15 values for $6.75.

Every pair of these Shoes is a new style of the most distinctive character—every pair embodies best quality leather, heels, linings and trimmings—every pair is made in expert manner, and finished with painstaking care. Not a single pair could be offered normally for less than $10—fully three-fourths of the lot were made to sell for $12.50 or $15. As a matter of fact, we have several hundred pairs of these same Shoes in our regular stock at those prices, but of course have no alternative other than to include them at less than they actually cost us.

RIPE OLIVES NOW PREPARED UNDER GOVERNMENT PLAN

Sterilization Increased by Packers in Hope of Avoiding Further Trouble From Decomposition.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, June 1.—Secretary Meredith of the Department of Agriculture, in making public the result of a thorough investigation by Government chemists of cases of poisoning due to the eating of ripe olives, said the trouble was not due to the containers in which they were packed, but to isolated cases of inadequate sterilization. The chemists found, he said, that it was possible to sterilize completely both glass jars and tin cans. To eliminate all possible future trouble, he said, the packers have adopted the department's recommendation that the olives be subjected to not less than 240 degrees of heat to prevent the possibility of danger to the consumer. This increased sterilization, it is said, in no way affects the flavor or edibility of the relish.

Owing to prejudice, due to the publicity given cases of poisoning from eating ripe olives, according to the packers, the ripe olive packing industry has been nearly destroyed, the demand having fallen off 95 per cent. So widespread was this prejudice that the consumption of green olives was similarly reduced, although no fatalities were traced to the use of them. It is believed that the action of the Department of Agriculture in discovering that the cause of poisoning was not due to either tin cans or glass jars, and in uniting the packers in a co-operative movement to standardize their product by absolutely safe methods of sterilization, will restore the olive industry to its former position in American trade.

Co-operation of Packers.

"The Bureau of Chemistry of the Department of Agriculture," says Secretary Meredith, "authorizes the statement that it has met with a gratifying degree of co-operation on the part of packers of ripe olives in improving methods to such an extent that danger from botulism poisoning in future packs will be eliminated. Five groups of deaths traced to poison produced by the organism known as bacillus botulinus have occurred in New York City, Detroit, Mich., Canton, O., Memphis, Tenn., and Kalamazoo, Mich. All of these cases were due to the consumption of ripe olives."

"Very extensive investigations have been made by scientists from the Bureau of Chemistry with the co-operation of the packers and the chemists have also employed specialists to study the causes of botulism poisoning and the precautions which should be employed to prevent further difficulty. The experts agree that the trouble is not inherent in the type of container used. Whether the olives are packed in glass jars or in tin cans they may be rendered absolutely safe if proper precautions are taken to prevent the infection with bacteria during handling and if the packages when filled are sterilized at a sufficient temperature and for a sufficient period of time. It is entirely practicable, says the specialists, to sterilize both glass containers and tin cans at a temperature high enough to insure absolute sterilization."

Sterilization Was Insufficient.

"Unfortunately some packs of ripe olives put up in glass as well as some in tin during past seasons were not prepared with all the precautions now known to be essential and were not sterilized at a sufficiently high temperature and some of these goods in glass were responsible for the fatalities. It is probable that all of the ripe olives on the market, but an extremely small number actually contained bacillus botulinus. Of more than 2000 individual packages collected and examined in the Bureau of Chemistry, but eight were found to contain bacillus botulinus, and seven of these were from the output of one manufacturer and from one batch of his output. In addition to these eight, the bureau has examined samples of some of the olives responsible for the fatalities and has also found bacillus botulinus in these specimens."

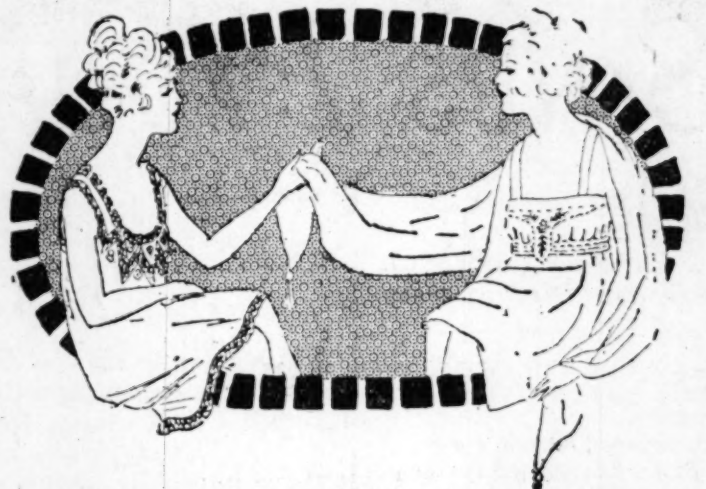

"Since there is a possibility of danger from any ripe olive which has been insufficiently sterilized, the Bureau of Chemistry has suggested to the industry that all ripe olives in glass or in tin, wherever located, be carefully inspected and that only those which show the slightest degree of decomposition be destroyed. It has further suggested that all ripe olives which have not been processed at a sufficiently high temperature be returned to the packers for immediate reprocessing at a sufficient temperature to insure complete sterilization."

New Plan Adopted.

"With few exceptions the olive packers have most heartily fallen in with all suggestions made in the interest of the public safety and by mutual agreement entered into by practically all of the packers they are now taking steps to withdraw from the market all ripe olives in glass containers which have not been sterilized at a sufficient temperature. Similar steps are being taken by some of the packers in the case of minced olive relishes in view of the fact that one death due to the consumption of such a product has been reported."

Announcing— Our Enlarged Umbrella Shop

—with a special display of colored silk, sun and rain Umbrellas

THE rapid growth of this very essential shop has made it necessary to enlarge the stock. We can now offer one of the most complete, most diversified Umbrella selections ever shown in St. Louis.

Many new and interesting designs in handles are shown in pyralin, bakelite fitted with leather straps. The frames have claw tips and stud-ends to match the handles and silk covering. There are two sizes: 22-inch, 10-rib frame, and 25-inch, 8-rib frame.

All the coverings are of rain-proof colored silk in navy, green, purple, brown and taupe; some with fancy borders, others with wide, self-colored satin borders.

Such Umbrellas will make very acceptable gifts for the graduate or for the June bride. The prices range from $10.00 to $25.00.

Umbrella Shop—First Floor.

100 Sample Umbrellas

—which we were able to secure from a prominent manufacturer at a price concession, because they were slightly imperfect, and which would sell regularly from $12.00 to $20.00, will be offered while the quantity lasts at $10.60 each.

(The above price includes war tax.)

A Sohmer "Cupid" Grand Piano for the Bride or Graduate

—will perpetuate the import of that occasion for a lifetime; will bring happiness into a youthful life in a lifelong lasting way. The pleasure and entertainment to be had from the possession of a Sohmer "Cupid" Grand cannot be computed in dollars and cents; but only by hours and by happy smiling faces and joyful hearts.

There are many reasons for selecting a Sohmer "Cupid."

It is small, measuring but five feet four inches in length, and because of the scientific (patented) construction looks even smaller. It will fit into the apartment or small home scheme admirably.

It possesses wonderful tonal quality and volume which is obtained because of the construction. Many people hesitate at buying a small Grand, fearing that because of the reduced size of the instrument, the tonal quality would be affected. Such is not the case with the Sohmer "Cupid." All the volume and richness of tone usually found in larger instruments has been retained in this perfect instrument.

Sohmer Grand Pianos have always been sold strictly on their own merits. No special effort has ever been made to secure the indorsement of professional artists, though many use the Sohmer exclusively from their own choice.

Vandervoort's recommend this instrument with full confidence that it will in every case give the utmost satisfaction.

The Plan of Payment is a most liberal one, allowing you two and one-half years in which to complete your payments. During that period you are protected by our insurance. Also a liberal allowance will be made for your old piano.

Music Salons—Sixth Floor.

SENATORS URGE AID FOR MEXICO OR USE OF FORCE IF NEEDED

Investigators Recommend Recognition Only After Constitutional Changes Affecting Americans.

PROPERTY AND RELIGIOUS QUESTIONS

Report Says 542 Americans Have Been Killed on Both Sides of Border Since Madero Revolution Began.

By the Associated Press.
WASHINGTON, June 1.—Armed intervention in Mexico, should the new forces in control there show an inability or unwillingness to set up a stable government more friendly towards Americans, was recommended to the Senate yesterday by the Foreign Relations Subcommittee investigating Mexican affairs.

Should a stable government be established, the committee recommended full recognition be accorded it and that financial assistance be offered by the United States. The committee said, however, that full recognition should not be given until a treaty had been entered into predicated upon assurances.

That provisions of article 27 of the Constitution of 1917, commonly regarded by foreigners as confiscatory, shall not be enforced against Americans.

That the constitutional clause, providing none except a Mexican citizen may be a minister of any religious creed in Mexico and that no periodical of a religious character shall comment upon any political affairs of the nation, or publish any information regarding the acts of the authorities or private individuals in so far as they have to do with public affairs be inapplicable to Americans.

That the provision that no minister or religious corporation may conduct schools or primary instruction shall not be applicable in the case of Americans.

That the article under which undesirable foreigners may be expelled be so revised as to give Americans the right to confer with the representative of their Government.

Adjustment of Claims.
The recommendations proposed a provision in the agreement for the immediate appointment of a claims commission to adjudicate the claims of Americans. The commission to be made up of men chosen by the two Governments and with the understanding that its findings be binding and be immediately carried out by the payment of the damages adjudged.

Should the Mexican officials fail fording adequate protection to Americans, the committee suggested that we send a police force, "consisting of the naval and military forces of our Government, into the republic of Mexico to open and maintain open every line of communication between the City of Mexico and every seaport and every border port of Mexico."

Notice to Mexican People.
This force should be sent in, the committee said, after notice had been given the Mexican people that the United States was not warring on them and that its sole purpose was to restore peace, protect Americans and their possessions, and afford the Mexican people an opportunity to constitute "a Mexican Government of serious, competent, honest and honorable men."

Should the Mexican authorities meet the proposals set forth, the committee recommends that the United States finance the Mexican Government, enabling it to refund

Start the baby's feet right, and you will have done much to make that walk an easy one.

We recommend the infant's Educator pump shown below because it is made to fit the foot—not to shape the foot artificially. It "lets the foot grow as it should," straight-boned and shapely. Approves and Sends to Senate Bill Providing for Collective Marketing.

By the Associated Press. WASHINGTON, June 1.—By a vote of 233 to 58 the House yesterday passed and sent to the Senate the bill permitting farmers, planters, ranchmen, dairymen or fruit growers to combine for the collective marketing and sale of their own products, notwithstanding anti-trust laws.

The measure was drafted by Chairman Volstead of the House Judiciary Committee as a substitute for the Kapper-Mansman bill and similar measures to legalize collective bargaining by agricultural producers.

Debate developed sharp division of opinion, supporters declaring the measure would give farmers and other producers an opportunity to negotiate a fair price for their products. Opponents asserted it would increase the cost of living and called it class legislation.

Limitations included in the bill said by its supporters to be designed to exclude from its benefits all except actual farmers, provide that the combinations to be organized must not pay more than 8 per cent dividend annually on capital stock, and every farmer must have one vote irrespective of his invested capital.

Control of the combinations organized under the bill would be placed in the Secretary of Agriculture, who might, after hearing, order the combinations to stop practices which might be held to restrain trade or lessen competition. The secretary also would be empowered to sue in Federal Court for enforcement of his orders should the combinations refuse to comply with them.

settlement of disputes concerning the international boundary and waters of the Rio Grande River and of the Colorado River, and particularly the Chamizal dispute and the Colorado River irrigation complication, with power to such commission to render a decision for the payment of money and transfer of property, if any, necessary in the final settlement of such dispute.

Financial Aid for Mexico.
"Having recognized any Mexican Government upon the conditions as above set forth, then not only the moral support, but financial aid without stint in so far as same is necessary for the refunding of all Mexican bonds, including external as well as the internal debt, with additional funds in sufficient amounts to rehabilitate all Mexican railroads and to maintain same, and also sufficient amounts to enable the recognized government to re-establish, organize and thoroughly equip a purely national army not belonging to any particular chief, chieftain or general, but operating solely under the national government, which shall immediately proceed where necessary to disarm all other armed forces or individuals in the republic; together with sufficient funds to enable the Mexican Government to buy and pay for all arms and equipment which may be brought in and surrendered by individuals or armed bands or so-called armies."

"Preferably this aid should be extended by the people of the United States as a national loan from them to the people of Mexico upon long time and with moderate rates of interest, so that Mexico may not be compelled to refund her debt and finance her necessities through appeal to individuals and by granting special privileges or concessions to such individuals."

"Legal Right" of Attitude.
"We have the legal right and it is our duty to refuse to recognize any Government in Mexico which will not agree by way of a treaty to the foregoing conditions of recognition."

"Should any Government proposing to be recognized refuse to concede to the foregoing conditions of recognition, immediate renewed notice should be given as suggested under B and C, with the statement to the de facto officials wherever found."

"That action would follow the warning in each and every case where action was necessary to preserve life or the property of an American citizen."

"Following such warnings and statements, should such Government not heretofore have restored order and peace in the republic of Mexico and effectively extended protection to our citizens after 100 notice to the Mexican people that we would not war with them, but in the words of McKinley that:

"First, 'In the cause of humanity and to put an end to the barbarities, bloodshed, starvation and horrible miseries now existing there and which the parties to the conflict are either unable or unwilling to stop or mitigate.'"

"That we will send a police force consisting of the naval and military forces of our Government to the republic of Mexico to open and maintain on every line of communication between the City of Mexico and every seaport and every border port of Mexico."

"And that we owe to our citizens in Mexico and those who have been driven out of that country, the duty, as McKinley said:

"To afford them that protection and indemnity for life and property, which no Government there can or will afford and to that end to terminate the conditions that deprive them of legal protection."

"As They Would Be Dealt With."

"In the giving notice that we are not warring upon the Mexican people," the committee's report added, "we should request their assistance; or at least that they refrain from joining any armed bands in attacks upon our troops or forces whose purposes would simply be the restoration of peace and order; protection of our citizens; protection of Mexican citizens; restoration to

American citizens of their property; the affording of opportunity for the opening of mines, fields and factories; and last, the affording of opportunity for the Mexican people themselves, in whatsoever manner they desire, to constitute a Mexican Government of serious, competent, honest and honorable men who will meet the civilized world upon a friendly ground and bind themselves to deal with other people as they themselves would be dealt with."

agreement which the committee recommends should be the basis for the proposed treaty between the United States and Mexico is that the Constitution of 1857 be substituted for that of 1917.

PALMER CHARGES POST IS RED SYMPATHIZER

Says He Is Becoming Definite Factor in Revolutionary Plan of Criminal Anarchists.

By the Associated Press. WASHINGTON, June 1.—Charging that Louis F. Post, Assistant Secretary of Labor, had a "perverted sympathy" for the criminal anarchist, Attorney-General Palmer told a House committee today that in dealing with attempts of the Government to rid the country of dangerous aliens, Post had employed a self-willed and autocratic substitution of his own mistaken personal viewpoint for the obligations of the public law.

Palmer was testifying before the Rules Committee which is investigating the official conduct of Post in deportation proceedings. "It has become perfectly apparent," the Attorney-General said, "that Mr. Post's course in all the deportation proceedings has been dictated by his own personal view that the deportation law is wrong, rather than by any desire or intention to carry out the law as enacted by the Congress. By his self-willed and autocratic substitution of his mistaken personal viewpoint for the obligation of public law, by his habitually tender solicitude for social revolutionists and perverted sympathy for the criminal anarchists in the country, he has consistently deprived the people of their day in court in the enforcement of a law of vital importance to their peace and safety. By his wholesale jail deliveries and his release of even self-confessed anarchists of the worst type, he has utterly nullified the purpose of the Congress in passing the deportation statute and has set at large amongst the people the very public enemies whom it was the desire and intention of the Congress to be rid of."

Palmer was testifying before the Rules Committee which is investigating the official conduct of Post in deportation proceedings. "It has become perfectly apparent," the Attorney-General said, "that Mr. Post's course in all the deportation proceedings has been dictated by his own personal view that the deportation law is wrong, rather than by any desire or intention to carry out the law as enacted by the Congress. By his self-willed and autocratic substitution of his mistaken personal viewpoint for the obligation of public law, by his habitually tender solicitude for social revolutionists and perverted sympathy for the criminal anarchists in the country, he has consistently deprived the people of their day in court in the enforcement of a law of vital importance to their peace and safety. By his wholesale jail deliveries and his release of even self-confessed anarchists of the worst type, he has utterly nullified the purpose of the Congress in passing the deportation statute and has set at large amongst the people the very public enemies whom it was the desire and intention of the Congress to be rid of."

Cites "Tolerance of Bolshevism." In answering Post's statements that he had canceled deportation warrants "only where facts warranted such action," Palmer cited numerous individual cases which he claimed placed the Assistant Secretary in a position of "passive tolerance and encouragement" of Bolshevik literature and propaganda. Palmer declared Post had "become a factor in the revolutionary plan," but he credited the Assistant Secretary with having been led into it "unconsciously." He said, however, that the attitude in which he had pictured the Labor Department official was one which antedated Post's service in the Government. Here he quoted from editorials written by Post when he was editor of "The Public," a magazine which the Attorney-General called "very radical."

While the witness believed Post's "encouragement" of the radical movement had served to strengthen it materially, he did not believe the Red doctrine ever would gain sufficient foothold to overturn this Government. But he warned it was a menace which must be watched closely.

Charges Answered by Palmer. The specific charges made before the committee by Post were answered by the Attorney-General. Regarding Post's assertion that "with all of these alleged raids, only three pistols have been found," Palmer declared that while the number of guns found in no way indicated the potential danger of the aliens, department agents not only found scores of them, but bombs and other implements of destruction as well. He named a dozen cities, in which he said the raids had disclosed preparations of the aliens to employ both guns and bombs and supported the statement with affidavits of justice agents who made raids.

The Attorney-General offered as proof of his statement that the men arrested were aware of the purpose of their organization, the membership application of the Communist party, in which the applicant agreed to "Engage actively in its work and subscribe to the tactics of the Communist Internationale." This, he declared, had pledged itself and its members to a worldwide revolution, by force.

Charges by Jackson H. Ralston, counsel for Post, that the Department of Justice had provoked agents in service who were engaged in forming new communist local organizations against which raids could be directed were characterized by the Attorney-General as "deliberate and unwarranted falsehoods." He said some of the department agents, in order to gain confidential information, had joined outlawed organizations, but he challenged "anybody" to show that anyone of the department employees has ever organized or has been instrumental in carrying out the policies or program of any radical organization.

ARTISTS' GUILD IN SECOND ANNUAL PICNIC

Bird Masque Recited to Accompaniment of Genuine Songs at Home in County.

The birds of Crag Darragh, who have had their own artists' guild for these many summers, exchanged the courtesies of the season with the Artists' Guild of St. Louis last evening.

Before sundown, the birds gave their symphony concert. At a bird symphony, the more the audience talks and laughs, the better the music is. Occasionally one of the soloists descended to the bird fountain to make his bow and take his incidental splash.

After dark, the birds kept still in their tree-tops, and listened to some of the Artists' Guild folks, who impersonated them, giving their Latin names, trying to reproduce their songs, and telling what they had done for the welfare of the dwellers at Crag Darragh. The birds all kept still, even Bubo Virginianus, the hoot owl.

Assertive Little Bufo.

But Bufo Lentiginos, who had been overlooked by the author of the bird masque, took his own way of calling attention to himself. Bufo Lentiginos is the lead in the bird fountain at Crag Darragh, and his vocal power is out of all proportion to his physical equipment. He appeared later when he was taken in hand by an intrepid youth with no fear of warts, and was exhibited to the Guild folk.

Crag Darragh is the country home of Mr. and Mrs. George S. Johns, across a valley to the west of Sunset Hill Country Club. The Artists' Guild enjoyed its second annual picnic there last evening. About 70 persons were there, others having remained away for fear of rain. In violation of picnic precedent, and of the omen of heavy clouds, there was no rain.

The bird masque, recited in the moonlight from behind a screen of shrubbery near the fountain, was written by Clark McAdams. Eleven types of bird life were represented in the recitative. The redbird, cardinal, the brown thrasher, Toxostoma Rufum, and the wood thrush, Hylodichla Mustelina, made the chief claims as songsters, while the red-headed woodpecker, the bluejay, the hoot owl and the rain crow, possessed more practical qualities.

Hopes Gasoline Will Fall.

"My grandfather hooted for 20 years in a tree which stood where the garage is," declared the hoot owl. "I hope gasoline gives out, so we can have another hooting tree in that place."

One of the most informative of the speeches was that of the whippoorwill, who said:

"I am the whippoorwill, Antrostomus Vociferus.

"My relation to Crag Darragh is purely economic.

"My song is really not a song at all.

"It is an assurance to the household that the estate is not to be overrun by insects.

"This is why I repeat it so incessantly on a summer night.

"There are a great many insects, and it is hard to believe they are to be kept down.

"There is a season when it looks as if they would destroy the crops. That is the season in which I do my singing.

"I like to assure the family that the balance of nature will be preserved.

"I like to have it feel that it is not always to subsist upon canned goods from Kirkwood.

"I like to predict strawberries, and make it certain that the Artists' Guild can be out in the strawberry season.

"Therefore I post in the bushes, close to the house.

"At night I sit in a tree by the kitchen and give the assurance of plenty.

"When the automobile comes out from town, bearing canned asparagus, I like to assure everybody that in due season we shall have asparagus of our own.

"I think the family appreciates this.

"I think it realizes that except for me the army worms would march back and forth over the place, and leave it as desolate as Northern France.

"I eat 500 beetles a night, and a beetle eats six potatoes a day.

"You can figure from that my economic value to Crag Darragh.

"I ask in return only this, that the cat be chained in the daytime and the dog Teddy kept out of the bushes where I have my nest on the ground.

"Is that asking too much?

"I think not.

"I am Antrostomus Vociferus, that is blessed assurance, the whippoorwill."

ROBBER CUTS OUT PIECE OF BARTENDER'S SHIRT TO GET STUD

No Attempt Made by Pair to Open Saloon Regained After They Get Diamond Valued at $300.

Two armed men walked into the saloon of Edmond Kreuger, 2501 South Jefferson avenue, at 9:30 p. m. yesterday and the spokesman ordered Kreuger and eight customers to throw up their hands and line up against the bar.

The second man walked behind the bar, picked up the cash register and shoved it across the bar to where Kreuger had taken his position, nodding to Kreuger, indicating he wanted the register opened. At that instant he observed a $300 diamond stud worn by Kreuger in his shirt front and without further ado he produced a pair of scissors and cut out a section of the shirt around the stud. He then put the piece of shirt in his pocket and ran out, followed by the second man, neither making any effort to open the register.

BLIND MAN'S WAGON STOLEN

Prospective Buyer Gets It When Owner Is Away From Home.

Police are seeking a man 35 years old, who yesterday appropriated a mule, wagon and harness belonging to John McKinnon, 412 South Main street, a blind man.

The man had negotiated with McKinnon for the purchase of the outfit, but they could not agree on terms and he departed. An hour later he returned while McKinnon was absent and told a neighbor he had been sent to get the outfit. It was turned over to him and he drove away. The neighbor gave his description to the police.

CONROY'S

A Trade Mark for Better Business Methods

A LITTLE over a decade ago the retail merchandising of Pianos was in a most unsatisfactory condition for both the music merchant and his customers. A sale was only accomplished after prolonged price dickering, in which the quality of the instrument was lost sight of in a maze of special discounts, secret rebates and extravagant terms of payment. Many persons had a positive feeling of dread in opening negotiations for a Piano, rightly knowing that no matter what price they paid, a cleverer buyer obtained greater concessions than themselves.

In the midst of this chaotic condition, and in spite of the dire prophecies of disaster voiced by friends and competitors alike, Conroy's adopted two revolutionary policies. First, they narrowed their field to Pianos and Players only, securing exclusive representation for the finest instruments of the most celebrated piano manufacturers. Next, they established an absolutely fixed price policy, attaching to every instrument in their house a price tag marked in plain figures, countersigned by the president of the company.

The record of the passing years has proved the wisdom of the Conroy's policies, as this institution has steadily forged ahead, outstripping all competition, and is today the largest exclusive Piano and Player concern in the country.

Because of the enormous volume of Conroy's business, this company merchandises instruments on narrower profit margins than less favorably situated concerns.

Today at Conroy's your own youngster can obtain as perfect an instrument at the price you wish to pay as the most noted connoisseur, and the price is the lowest at which an instrument of its value is obtainable.

The public indorsement of Conroy's methods has been so widespread that the name Conroy's has grown to be "A Trade-Mark" for "Better Business Methods," not only in St. Louis, but also throughout America.

ALIENS COMING TO U. S. SCOFF AT MENIAL LABOR

Tide of Immigration Unlikely to Solve Servant Problem, Superintendent at Ellis Island Believes.

ALL HAVE EYES ON BETTER FACTORY JOBS

Women Immigrants Want Positions in Cities Where They Can Enjoy Luxuries
From High Wages.

By the Associated Press.
NEW YORK, June 1.—Though the tide of immigration has begun to flow again into the United States from Europe, so that incoming ships have their lower decks crowded with homeseekers from other lands, there is little prospect that relief is in sight for the American housewife who has been providing herself a cook or maid-of-all-service to be recruited from the newcomers. At least that is the opinion of Supt. P. A. Baker of the United States Immigration Station on Ellis Island.

"Immigration has been increasing by leaps and bounds," Baker said, "and it is a hopeful sign that the aliens arriving in this port during the last few weeks have exceeded the number going back to their native lands by many thousands. Last week six times as many came in as qualified to leave the country."

"People who think the servant girl problem is going to be solved soon will be disappointed if they are depending on the women immigrants from Ireland and the Scandinavian countries. Plenty of these are arriving on every boat, but they turn up their noses at the thought of menial labor. They have their minds set on getting work in the better factories, principally those manufacturing luxuries such as candy and women's finery. They want to get into places where employees are well treated and where reputations for housing facilities are best, so that they can live on the scale justified by the high wages paid them. If employers want to attract these classes of women immigrants they had better look to the reputations of their factories for pleasant working conditions."

Baker scouted the idea that prohibition was one reason why immigration was not gaining more rapidly. He said the women immigrants were coming in at about one-third the rate of the year immediately preceding the European war. The principal reason why more were not coming was that the men and women needed in their own countries, some of which, notably Poland, are supporting huge armies which use up a large part of their man power, with the result that those who are free to do civilian work cannot find wages comparable to those paid in this country.

The present wave of immigration originates in about the same countries as before the war, with the exception of Germany and Austria-Hungary. Italy furnishes by far the greatest number. These are largely unskilled laborers who find their way into the big cities all over the country where they go into the big industries and mines.

Only in the case of one country is the outgoing population greater than that coming in. This is Poland whose nationals besiege the Polish Consulate daily in great numbers seeking passports. About 8000 of these passports were issued last month and nearly as many in each of the months preceding since the first of the year. They are going back, it is generally believed, because of homesickness and anxiety over the welfare of relatives in the war zones.

By the Associated Press.

The dispatch adds that it is alleged that the lodges even before the war were revolutionary centers.

ARMENIAN MANDATE TAKEN UP

Vote on Refusal Resolution in Senate Expected Today.

By the Associated Press.
WASHINGTON, June 1.—The Senate today will vote on the resolution declining to authorize a mandate over Armenia as requested by President Wilson. Under plans agreed to yesterday the final vote was set for not later than 4 o'clock this afternoon.

It also was agreed to limit discussion by each Senator to 45 minutes, though it was said few of them desired to speak. Most of the discussion was expected to be on the amendment proposed by Senator Hitchcock of Nebraska, ranking minority member of the Foreign Relations Committee, providing for a joint commission to work out an Armenia. A close vote on this pro-economic rehabilitation program for posal was expected.

REALTY MAN HELD FOR KILLING WITH A BROOM

C. E. Ostermann to Await Grand Jury Action for Death of Henry A. Eicks.

Charles E. Ostermann, 40 years old, of 1514 North Fifteenth street, a real estate dealer, was held for the grand jury today, on a verdict of homicide, by the coroner's jury which inquired into the death of Henry A. Eicks, 62, of 1453 Cass avenue, a wagon manufacturer. Eicks died in the city hospital at 11 p. m. yesterday, three hours after he was struck on the head with a street sweeper's broom wielded by Ostermann.

Ostermann wept at the inquest. An endeavor was made to show, by the testimony of John W. Grundack of 2007A East Fair avenue, that Eicks was the aggressor in the quarrel, which occurred in an alley. According to the police, the difficulty between the two men arose over a garbage can owned by Ostermann, and standing in the alley, to which Eicks objected. Ostermann, the police were told, objected in turn to the way in which a wagon, belonging to Eicks, had been backed against a shed behind the Ostermann home.

The witness, Grundack, did not tell of these preliminaries, but said he saw Eicks approach Ostermann in the alley, and that Eicks warned Ostermann to "quit interfering" with his affairs, threatening him. Ostermann replied, the witness said, that he had not been interfering. He said Eicks returned later and renewed the discussion, raising his hands in a threatening manner, and that Ostermann then picked up the broom. The witness said he did not see the blow struck. The blow fractured Eicks' skull.

Eicks, who was a widower, is survived by three sons and two daughters. His brothers are William F. Eicks, 2815 North Taylor avenue; Alfred Eicks, a patent attorney, of 2121 Alice avenue, and Alexander Eicks, superintendent of the St. Louis Ford automobile distributing agency, residing at 4908 Wabasha avenue.

OFFICE OF U. S. DISTRICT ATTORNEY HERE VACANT

Hensley's Resignation Effective, and Appointment of U. S. District Attorney Here Vacant.

Judge Faris today wired United States Attorney-General Palmer, asking what will be the status tomorrow of the office of District Attorney in St. Louis, left vacant by the resignation, effective today, of Walter L. Hensley and the failure of the Senate to confirm the appointment of James L. Carroll to succeed Hensley. Carroll is the law partner of Congressman Igoe.

Judge Faris said that unless the department makes provision, he probably will appoint a District Attorney ad interim, as provided for by Federal statutes, to handle business of the office until a permanent incumbent is named. Judge Faris anxiety in the matter is due to a doubt in his mind as to the validity of indictments signed by any but a regularly constituted District Attorney. A grand jury is in session, and indictments have to be prepared from day to day.

Hensley left the office without designating anyone to act in charge of it, and each of the three assistants, Benjamin L. White, Eustace C. Wheeler and Nat C. Whaley, disclaims authority to run the office. It is believed at the Federal building here, however, that delay in the confirmation is due to membership of both Missouri Senators on the committee investigating expenditures of presidential candidates. Senatorial courtesy provides that members be present when patronage in their states is being acted on. Confirmation is expected today or tomorrow.

Kirk, the eldest son, assistant engineer of the State highway department at Jefferson City, is to marry Miss Valera Miller, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George E. Miller, 5897 Garfield avenue, in July.

New Hair Growth After BALDNESS

HAIR GROWN ON MR. BRITTAIN'S BALD HEAD, BY INDIANS' MYSTERIOUS HAIR GROWER

My head at the top and back was absolutely bald. The scalp was shiny. An expert said that as he thought the hair roots were extinct, and there was no hope of my ever having a new hair growth. Yet now, at an age over 66, I have a luxuriant growth of soft, strong, lustrous hair. No trace of baldness. The pictures shown here are from my photographs.

Indians' Secret of Hair Growth

At a time when I had become discouraged at trying various hair lotions, tonics, specialists' treatments, etc., I came across, in my travels, a Cherokee Indian "medicine man" who had an elixir that he asserted would grow my hair. Although I had but little faith, I gave it a trial. To my amazement a light fuzz soon appeared. It developed, day by day, into a healthy growth, and ere long my hair was as prolific as in my youthful days.

That I was astonished and happy is expressing my state of mind mildly. Obviously, the hair roots had not been dead, but were dormant in the scalp, awaiting the fertilizing potency of the mysterious pomade. I negotiated for and came into possession of the principle for preparing this mysterious elixir, now called Kotalke, and later had the recipe put into practical form by a chemist.

That my own hair growth was permanent has been amply proved. Many men and women, also children, have reported satisfactory results from Kotalke.

How YOU May Grow YOUR Hair

My honest belief is that hair roots rarely die even when the hair falls out through dandruff, fever, excessive dryness or other disorders. I have been told by experts that often when hair falls out the roots become imbedded within the scalp, covered by hard skin, so that they remain for a time like bulbs or seeds in a bottle which will grow when fertilized. Shampoo (which contains alkali) and hair lotions which contain alcohol are enemies to the hair, as they dry it, making it brittle. Kotalke contains three elements of nature which give new vitality to the scalp and hair.

PROVE FOR YOURSELF

Get a box of the genuine Kotalke at a reliable druggist's or $2.00 GUARANTEE with each box. A small testing box of Kotalke (with testimonials, etc.) may be obtained by sending ten cents, silver or stamp, to my address below.

IRENE FRANKLIN STARS ON ORPHEUM PROGRA.

Sings Old and New Songs to Enliven Last Bill of the Season.

Irene Franklin, comedienne who began her long stage career in St. Louis, is the headliner on the last bill of the season at the Orpheum this week. She sings some of her old songs and a couple of new ones and is as magnetic as ever. She is assisted at the piano by her husband, Burton Green. Miss Franklin sings a medley, "Why Do They Call Me Red-Head?" Impersonates a cash girl, revives her old song, "Dirty Face," characterizes a Broadway chorus girl and mimics a French girl in her welcome to the American soldier. As usual her act "goes big." Green's contribution, in addition to the accompaniment is the solo playing of "To a Wild Rose" and the "Jewels of the Madonna" intermezzo. Jesse Brown and Effie Weston have a strenuous dancing and high kicking act which makes heavy drafts on their youthful energy. The Alexander Kids, some of whom will soon graduate from the "kid" class exhibit their juvenile precocity as dancers and singers. Wallace Galvin does mystifying tricks with cards and Harry Adler, assisted by Rose Dunbar, shows his facility as a vocal imitator of animals and noisy inanimate objects.

Basel Lynn is back with his impersonation of a Briton trying to grasp American slang and customs. His effort seems even less funny than in former seasons. The performance opens with a marionette show and closes with statue poses by horses and dogs.

CIRCULATION MANAGERS DISCUSS POSTAL RATES

Newspaper Men From United States and Canada Open Convention.

Circulation managers of newspapers in the United States and Canada discussed the new zone postage rates for newspapers in the two countries at the opening session of the International Circulation Managers' Association at Hotel Statler this morning. The association will meet tomorrow on the Steamer St. Paul while on a river excursion and the convention will end Thursday at the hotel.

The opposition to the zone rates of postage was voiced by T. V. Armstrong, circulation manager of the Ottawa (Ont.) Journal, who made the first talk. The stated subject was "postal rates for daily newspapers, taking into consideration the performance of an indispensable public service."

"The Canadian and the United States postoffices," said Armstrong, "want to carry newspaper mail on a cost plus basis, as common carriers would do. The Canadian estimate for 1919 of the average cost of carrying newspapers is six cents a pound, and that of the United States eight cents."

"In Canada we now pay one-half cent a pound generally, but there is a bill pending in Parliament to raise that rate materially. We up there think no raise in postage should ever be more than 25 per cent, to avoid a bad disturbance of relations between publisher and subscriber."

"Postage is a tax similar to income and business taxes. Imposed to maintain the Government to run the country for the people and the Government should provide a cheap distribution of letters, newspapers and periodicals. It is in the interest of every manufacturer, producer, religious and educational institution, the Government itself and the public that newspapers should be carried at a restricted cost to the publishers and not at present and proposed zone rates."

Important in Education.
Armstrong said that newspapers are one of the most potent factors in education. He said that rural and city mail delivery, the railway mail and parcel post do not produce a profit, and pointed out that publishers sell newspapers much below cost and should enjoy cheap postage. Advertisers, he said, pay the largest proportion of newspaper cost.

M. W. Zepp, circulation manager of the Washington Times, said that when the congressional committee considered the present zone law it did not have representative evidence on the subject, but procured a mass of evidence difficult to digest. The matter was turned over to the Postoffice Department then.

"The newspapers failed to present their case," he said. "Our organization is a representative one. Let us draft a fair and adequate second-class postage bill and present it to Congress, saying that many publishers from all over the country are in favor of our amendment to the law."

Yankee Favors Zone Idea.
George H. Reynolds, circulation manager of the Standard of New Bedford, Mass., said he favored the zone law. "The average New England newspaper has only a 5 per cent mail circulation," he said. "Because the papers render an indispensable public service should not give them the enjoyment of a postage rate lower than the cost of postal service," Reynolds said. "After all, isn't the first-zone rate fair? What does circulation outside the first zone mean to local advertisers?"

"I read recently that 150 of a group of 200 publishers favored the zone plan and I was surprised the percentage was not larger. Why advocate a flat rate for newspaper mail more than for telegram, express, railroad or trolley service?
They, too, are indispensable."

Reynolds predicted that if the flat rate for newspaper mailing should be renewed a deficit in Government finances would result which the people will have to make up in some form of taxation. He suggested that publishers accept the zone rates and move to have postal service improved, citing instances of poor service. He said such a movement should be carried on through the Congressional Committee on Postoffice Affairs rather than through the Postmaster-General. He urged an individual appeal of publishers to their Congressmen along the lines suggested.

George A. Fischer of the San Francisco Chronicle and P. P. Reddick of the Jacksonville (Fla.) Metropolis were also on the program for discussion of postage rates.

Your Extra Savings

American bankers, curbing only the speculative profiteers and producers of surplus luxuries, have joined the people to force down the High Cost of Living.

The people themselves struck the first blow. They have been on strike against excessive prices. If they stay on strike a while longer prices still unfairly high will come down to fair levels.

"Wages and salaries generally will stay at present levels until the iron law of supply and demand here and there enforces a revision."

This means most of us from this time on will have a larger savings margin between income and cost of living. Wise men and women will INVEST these extra savings, buying shares of ownership in legitimate industries. They will favor those industries which produce NECESSARIES, which have prospered without profiteering, and which are known to be strong and safe.

Union Electric 7 per cent preferred stock is a security of this kind. Every dollar of it is backed by much more than a dollar of State-appraised, income-producing property. HIGHER PAY FAVORED
FOR POSTAL EMPLOYEES

Congressional Committee Recommends Increase First Year
Total $33,000,000.

By the Associated Press.
WASHINGTON, June 1.—Increased salaries for postal employees amounting approximately to $33,000,000 for the first year, effective July 1, were recommended in a report to Congress yesterday by a joint congressional commission.

Estimates by the commission place the increase of the postal payroll at about $38,000,000 for the second year and $43,000,000 for the third and fourth years.

Increases from $150 to $250 annually for postal clerks and letter carriers, with $400 for supervisory officers were recommended. No increases for first-class postmasters receiving $5000 a year were proposed, however.

For rural delivery carriers, the commission recommended $1800 for a 24-mile route and an additional $30 for each mile in excess of that distance. Motor route carriers covering 50 miles or more would receive not in excess of $2600. The pay of village delivery carriers would be from $1000 to $1200. Should the recommendations of the commission, based on hearings held in various parts of the country, be adopted, clerks at first and second class post-offices as well as city carriers would be divided into five classes, with those in the first class receiving $1400 annually and $100 added for each class. Substitutes and temporary clerks would receive 60 cents an hour, while special clerks would be paid from $1800 to $2000 annually. Watchmen, messengers and laborers would be divided into two grades, the first receiving $1250 and the second $1450.

Clerks in the postal mail service would be divided into six classes, with those in the first class receiving $1500, those in the sixth class $2300, and the others graduated between.

Service for all clerks, the commission's report recommended, would be on an average of eight hours per day, 306 days per year. Division superintendents would receive $4200 annually, assistant superintendents $3200, chief clerks $3000, and assistant chief clerks $2500.

Pay of postoffice inspectors would range from $2200 to $4200, with an allowance of not more than $5 a day for expenses while traveling. Clerks at division headquarters of the Postoffice Inspection Service would receive from $1600 to $2600.

A graduated increase was proposed by the commission for first-class postmasters receiving less than $500 annually, ranging from $200 to $400 for postmasters now receiving $3000 to $3700 annually; $400 to $500 for those now getting between $3700 and $3800, and $500 to $600 for those whose pay now is between $500 and $4000.

Second-class postmasters whose present salary ranges from $2300 to $3000 would receive an increase from $100 to $200. Assistant postmasters would receive $50 for the grade up to $2150. Third-class postmasters would be increased $300 from basic salaries each, the salaries ranging from $1000 to $2200. The commission also recommended that fourth-class postmasters be allowed 140 per cent on cancellations of $75 per quarter and less; 115 per cent per quarter and in excess of $100 per quarter 100 per cent on the next $100, 75 per cent on the next $100 and 60 per cent on the remainder.

The commission recommended a graduated scale of pay, based on office receipts for supervisory officers in first-class postoffices. The scale ranges from $2200 for assistant postmasters and $2100 for superintendents of mail in offices with receipts between $40,000 and $75,000, to $4800 for the former and $4400 for the latter when receipts are above $20,000,000 annually. Provision is made for pay increases for other supervisors.

Fifteen days' vacation annually with pay for all employees and sick leave of not more than 30 days a year with pay were recommended.

ELKS' MEMORIAL CEREMONY

HELD IN CEMETERY AT 11 P. M.

Ritualistic memorial services in honor of departed members of St. Louis Lodge No. 2, B. P. O. Elks, were held at Elks' Rest in Bellefontaine Cemetery at 11 o'clock (Myrtle Hour) last night. About 1000 persons attended.

When Jules Bertero, secretary of the order, had called off the names of the men who are buried in Elks' Rest, Bryant's "Thanatopsis" was read by Joseph J. Desberg. This was followed by the singing of "Auld Lang Syne" and the invocation by Joseph H. Glauber. After the graves were decorated all lights were turned out. Aswell was sounded 11 times and as the last note died away Circuit Attorney McDaniel read the Elks' 11 o'clock toast.

As McDaniel finished reading the toast and struck up "America," and two verses were sung. A bugler sounded "taps," and then Miss Marion Seymour appeared as the "Spirit of the Hour" and sang "God Be With You Till We Meet Again." After which Glauber pronounced the benediction. Last night's ceremony was the third to be held by the Elks in Bellefontaine Cemetery.

Right Hander Stops White Sox With Six Hits and Breaks Local's Losing Streak.

Browns Game Is Off

A heavy downpour half an hour before game time, today, caused this afternoon's scheduled contest between the White Sox and the Browns to be postponed.

Inability to hit Southpaw Claude Williams in the pinches, after they had shattered their losing streak of seven in a row by beating Urban Faber, 2—0, prevented the Browns from scoring a double victory over the White Sox in the Memorial day bill. About 13,000 spectators witnessed the two games, among the best seen at the Browns' park in many days.

The Browns' pinch hitting in the nightcap with men on bases, except in two innings, was as weak as anything ever put over by the locals. In this clash, the Burkmen showed spectators how it is possible to put 23 men on the bases in 10 rounds and score only three tallies. Against this, the Sox made 12 safeties good for five runs, and won, 5—3.

The Ball entry pounded the offerings of Williams for one or more raps in each inning, but only in the first and ninth were they able to tally. Men put on base by the Browns during the clash were as follows:

First inning, three; second, two; third, one; fourth, three; fifth, one; sixth, three; seventh, two; eighth, three; ninth, three, and tenth, two.

Three of the runners got on through bounces and four via the fielder's choice route.

Crowd Lingered Till the End. However inasmuch as the Burkmen threatened to score in every inning all the spectators hung on until the finish, expecting something to break loose in any round. However, Williams refused to weaken until the ninth.

In this inning Tobin started with a pass and Gibson doubled. Sisler also doubled, sending in the two runs and tying the score. Sisler, however, was out trying for third. The other run off Williams came as a result of successive singles by Geedee, Sisler and Jacobson and Williams' sacrifice fly in the first round. The Sox scored two in the third, when Leibold and Collins singled and Weaver walked, filling the bases, with one out, and sending Williams' der to the showers. Davis replaced him, and got rid of Jacobson, but Felsch singled two over. A pass, sacrifice and single gave the third out Davis in the fourth.

Sanders was flinging in the tenth when the Sox won. Two out, Leibold singled, Collins walked and Weaver and Jackson followed with hits, good for two markers.

In the opening clash, the outstanding feature was the pitching of Urban Faber. He held the heavy hitting Sox to six safeties and only in the ninth was he in real danger of being scored upon as a result of two hits and an error by Gerber. Williams' homer gave the first run off Faber in the second, while in the seventh, three hits and a fielder's choice gave another.

This battle was replete with sensational fielding. Walter Gerber made several stops behind second that did not seem to be in the book, while Sisler on several occasions saved Shocker with brilliant plays. Felsch made the star play for the Sox, catching Sisler's hard drive with one hand and robbing George of a sure homer.

ALEXANDER WINS 11TH BATTLE IN SUCCESSION
Grover Cleveland Alexander, the Cubs' star right-hander, yesterday hung up his eleventh successive victory when he defeated the Reds, 3—2, in 10 innings in the morning game at Chicago. Alexander yielded only five hits and won his own game with a eight drive. Alexander now has a record of 11 victories against two defeats for the campaign. He has permitted 25 runs this season.

Order Jumpers to Return in 5 Days

Failure to Do So Will Result in Expulsion From Organized Game, They Say.

NEW YORK, June 1.—Major League baseball players who have jumped their contracts to play with teams in independent leagues were warned today that if they do not return to their teams within five days they will be permanently barred from the two big leagues.

Players who have jumped reserve clauses were warned that if they do not return to their clubs within the end of five days period of grace, it will be three years before the National Commission will consider their plea for reinstatement.

Decision to take this drastic action was reached at a conference here today between John Heydler, president of the National League, and Ban Johnson, president of the American League. Mr. Heydler offered at the conference the name of John Conway Toole, a New York attorney, as a compromise candidate for the chairmanship of the National Commission. Toole had a conference here today with both Heydler and Johnson.

Among players affected by today's decision are Kinney of the Philadelphia Americans; Harris, Cleveland Americans; Pearce, Philadelphia Nationals; and Gerner and Cueto of the Cincinnati Nationals.

Chevrolet Wins 500-Mile Race When De Palma's Car Catches Fire.

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., June 1.—Gaston Chevrolet of Indianapolis, who won the eighth annual renewal of the 500-mile auto race at the Indianapolis Motor Speedway yesterday, in a Monroe car, will be awarded his many trophies at a banquet to be given all the drivers by the citizens of Indianapolis tonight.

Chevrolet's time of 5 hours 40 minutes, 15.14 seconds, was second only to the record made for the local course by Ralph de Palma in 1915. Chevrolet maintained an average speed of 88.16 miles per hour.

For his triumph in the long grind he will receive the Speedway prize of $20,000, citizens' lap prizes of $1,800 for leading the field during the last 13 laps, at least $5,000 of the $15,000 to be divided among the drivers using accessories of certain automobile manufacturers and the Wheeler-Schebler Cup, the Prestolite trophy and the Strauss silver tea set.

A crowd estimated at 125,000 by Carl G. Fisher, president of the Speedway Co., watched 23 of the greatest auto pilots of America, France, England and Italy battle for racing fame and prizes. This attendance exceeded by 15,000 the record set in 1914, when Rene Thomas, who finished second to Chevrolet yesterday, drove to a hard-earned victory. Thomas finished in 5:43:22.29, an average speed of 87.45 miles an hour. He gets $10,000 in prize money and $700 for leading seven laps of the race.

De Palma's Car Catches Fire.
Tommy Milton, who finished third will be awarded $5,000 in prize money. Jimmy Murphy finished fourth and will get $3,500. Ralph de Palma, the favorite before the race, who took the lead shortly after the 275-mile mark, and held it until within 30 miles of the finish, will get $3,000 in Speedway prize money for finishing fifth, and $3,800 in lap prizes.

De Palma's car caught fire twice within a mile, costing him first place. He was temporarily unable to start his car when

Pewee Kaiser Gives Boxing Lesson to Former Champion

St. Louis Amateur Floors Darcy in First and Beats Him All the Way in Three-Round Encounter—Hard Hitters and Good Bouts Feature Armory's Simon Pure Show.

By John E. Wray.

SHOWING all the coolness of a Jimmy Wilde and ring craft worthy of a veteran professional, John "Pewee" Kaiser of the South Broadway A. C., confirmed the good impression of his static talents held by his friends when he decisively outpointed Tommy Darcy, American and Canadian amateur champion in the 115-pound class in 1916, at the Armory last night.

No half-line victory did the local boy score over his National Sporting Club opponent. Before the first round was over "Pewee" brought his veteran opponent to the floor with a hard right cross that must have made the one-time title-holder re-constitutions not charted in the Knocked. The second round was Pewee's best for he gave his more experienced foe savage and continuous punishment. Kaiser beat Darcy in Everything. "Pewee" eased up in the third, although in entire command of the situation. He had Darcy clinching like a bush fighter to save himself. He side-stepped his rushes, blocked and batted down his leads as coolly as a Benny Leonard. He was inside of Darcy's hooks and beat him to the lead many times. At times, Kaiser's counters shook his opponent from foundation to dome.

Altogether Darcy was thoroughly whipped and almost outclassed. It must not be understood that Darcy showed nothing. He gave evidence of long experience and displayed gameness, considerable skill and evidently is an old hand. He was down to the specified weight, but it is doubtful if he was in the splendid condition Kaiser showed. Furthermore, he probably was not tuned up by constant practice, as was Darcy. Last night he probably never saw the time when he could outgeneral, outbox or outfight the smart little fellow from the South Side.

Kaiser made a splendid impression and undoubtedly will be heard from in professional ranks whenever he decides to quit the simon pures.

Many Good Bouts Run Off.

Last night's entertainment, while witnessed by only 800 fans, was worthy of a better crowd. It also gave hope to those present that even though the professional lid remains on, the amateur pastime will furnish good and entertaining bouts next fall.

Of the 10 bouts last night, at least five would have interested any lover of the game, and in three of them skill of a high order was on display. Perhaps the best bout of the evening, next to the Kaiser-Darcy event, was that between Marion Caravello and Joe Calto, two amateurs hitherto unknown to local fame. They were unearched by Roger Cornell. When questioned by A. A. U. officials as to where they gained their advanced knowledge of the game, Calto stated that he picked up most of his boxing while in the army. Caravello explained that he had been boxing with Sammy Sherman. Both had "been to the wars" before, and gave a splendid exhibition, fighting cleanly and hard. Caravello, in better condition than his foe, had little on him in skill, but wore him down in the third round, when Helmer stopped the bout following a knockdown.

Julius Wields Mighty Right.

The crowd gasped with awe when Lee Julius began to deliver haymakers at the clever Morris Mickey, in another good feature. Julius has a kick like raisin whisky, in his right hand, and in the second round he whanged the man killer full against the jaw of his foe. It broke off one of Mickey's front teeth, and sent it flying into the press box. Another Julian bolt knocked Mickey to the floor, where he sat on the canvas looking dazedly around as if to locate the cuckoo he heard calling him.

He was apparently badly dazed, but he came to and finished out the bout a tired boy. Facing this Julius person is like juggling nitro glycerin. At the slightest slip your friends are likely to have cause to remark: "It's too bad such a nice fellow had to leave us so suddenly."

Butch Stops Bock.

Jimmy Bock, a clever, cool young fellow, conceded too much strength and weight to George Butch, the city and Western A. A. U. 115-pound champion, and was stopped. He gave a good display of skill and gameness, however. George Puchta, city champion lightweight, had the time of his life last posing of the awkward but dangerous foe, Lawrence Richardson. Despite his shriveled right fist and his "chick" methods, Lawrence proved himself a dangerous, game fellow, one who had Puchta tin-canning and clinching all through the last two rounds. Puchta used good generalship against this difficult opponent, and beat him soundly with a left hand, which had Richardson's face looking like a dollar's worth of hamburger. At that, George seemed glad when the tornado had passed.

Bockenkamp and Manion to Enter District Tourney

At Least 100 Golfers Expected to Compete at Westwood in Event Starting Saturday.

Thirty-two entries have been received by Secretary Frank B. Nail for the 57th annual St. Louis District Golf Association championship tournament, which will be started over the Westwood Country Club course, Saturday morning. It is expected that the list will be swelled to at least 100 before the entry is closed, Thursday evening.

Although their official registrations have not yet been received, it has been learned that Richard Bockenkamp and James Manion will compete in the local event, instead of the Trans-Mississippi championship, which will be held at the same time at Rock Island, Ill.

Clarence Wolff, who won the district title at Belleville last summer, where he will play. Of course, the Westwood meet would lose a lot of its glamour if the Sunset golfer entered at Rock Island, as he is generally conceded to be the city's star golfer right now. Wolff has been playing in top-season form during the past month, not one of his Sunset scores getting above the low seventies.

A large number of members of other clubs were playing at Westwood Sunday and yesterday to acquaint themselves with the fairways and greens of the Westwood course. The links have been worked for the past two weeks by a large squad of men and are now in excellent condition.

Women Play at Normandy. This week's district association tourney for women will be held at the Normandie Golf Club, tomorrow morning. As has been the case in previous meetings, there will be three phases of competition. Prizes will be offered for blind bogey, scratch and handicap play. Last week the tournament attracted 70 entrants.

Chris Kenney Wins. Chris Kenney won the flag tournament at Sunset, yesterday. Chris was tied with Clarence Wolff, Bob Hussey and L. M. Ford at the finish of the regular round and won out on hole 13. The low medalist for the trip was Wolff, who turned in a 73, while the winner, Kenney, had a 75.

Manion Wins at Midland. Jimmy Manion won the championship prize for the Eaton tournament at Midland Valley, yesterday. The play provided for three classes. Each class included 16 players who left the first tee together. The process of elimination was used, the two players surviving on the eighth green playing No. 9 for the prize. Manion won out from Harry Ink on the final green. His score was 37.

CORN PRICES RISE MORE THAN 6c ON LOCAL MARKET
Corn futures rose more than 6c on the Merchants' Exchange today. The weather situation was a bull factor in the trade. The difference between the cash and futures prices also was stressed.
Covering by shorts sent corn prices up more than 2c within the first hour, following a fractionally better opening.
The weather map showed wet conditions over the corn belt which was interpreted as beneficial for the grain in the ground, but likely to retard seeding where not now accomplished.
Local receipts (three days) were 143,600 bushels of wheat, including 29 cars local and 74 through; 333,300 bushels of corn, including 222 cars local and 28 through; 224,000 bushels of oats, including 24 cars local and 19 cars through; 153 tons of hay, including 133 tons local and 603 through.

Is Backache Slowing You Up?
ARE you dragging along week after week with a dull, throbbing backache? Do you feel lame in the morning, tired all day; suffer sharp, torturing twinges at every sudden move? Then there's something wrong! So why not find out what it is and try to correct it? You may never have suspected your kidneys, yet often it's the kidneys that are at fault. A cold, a strain, or overwork congests the kidneys and slows them up; poisons accumulate in the system and many mysterious aches and pains result. You may have headaches and dizzy spells, too, with perhaps some annoying bladder irregularity. Don't wait for more serious trouble. You owe it to yourself to get well and stay well. Use Doan's Kidney Pills. They have helped many St. Louis folks. They should help you. Ask your neighbor!

These Are St. Louis Cases:

Dodier Street
Geo. Shore, 2221 Dodier St., says: "I was knocked down by a truck four years ago and my back was injured. I couldn't get around for a long time, and about a year after that my kidneys began to hurt me. Mornings, I couldn't turn over to get out of bed and I would have to put my hands on my back to get straightened up. I had made up my mind to see a doctor when I read in the paper of Doan's Kidney Pills. I used three boxes and they cured me. That was about three years ago and I have not felt a sign of the old trouble since."

South Seventh Street
Mrs. Marie Rockhoff, 1101 S. Seventh St., says: "I believe heavy lifting is what caused my kidney trouble. I had a heavy box of books and I was lifting it when I felt a sharp pain in my back. I had a doctor, but he said I had a kidney trouble. I used Doan's Kidney Pills and they cured me. I have not felt a sign of the old trouble since."

South Broadway
John Foley, 738 S. Broadway, says: "I believe Doan's Kidney Pills are the best kidney remedy on the market. I have used them with good results. About five years ago my kidneys and back were in a bad shape. I had a heavy feeling over my kidneys and through the small of my back. It was hard for me to do any lifting. A fellow workman told me to try Doan's Kidney Pills, and I did with the best of results. Two boxes stopped the pain in my back so that I have not been bothered in over four years. I believe in Doan's as a kidney cure."

Manchester Avenue
Mrs. A. P. Richter, 674 Manchester Ave., says: "About five years ago I had rheumatic pains in my feet and hands. I could hardly bear to put my feet on the floor and I was in constant pain for a year. My feet and hands swelled badly and I couldn't get any sleep. I had a doctor, but he said I had a kidney trouble. I used Doan's Kidney Pills and they cured me. I have not felt a sign of the old trouble since."

Bates Street
Mrs. Mary Worthington, 4104 Bates St., says: "Several years ago my back bothered me and I could hardly do my housework. My kidneys gave me considerable trouble. I had a doctor, but he said I had a kidney trouble. I used Doan's Kidney Pills and they cured me. I have not felt a sign of the old trouble since."

LETTERS FROM THE PEOPLE.

Some School Methods.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

Now, after several weeks of undecision, that Dr. Withers' duty "seems perfectly clear" and he has determined to "remain on the job until the expiration of the term," and since the grade teachers seem to be temporarily appeased in regard to their raise in salary, let us pause to consider the child, who is so important a factor that without him there would be no need of superintending nor of teachers. Are the children mere pawns in this game of brilliant moves being made by their instructors? In some cases it would seem so. Their development seems to be a secondary consideration.

Two weeks ago the children of a West End school were told that the room bringing the most waste paper that week would be dismissed early one afternoon. Consider the ethics in this. Instead of instilling a love for school, such an offer presupposed that the children would be glad to leave early. How much better to have offered a trip to the zoo, Shaw's Garden or through some manufacturing place where the children could have gained by the hour's relaxation. But that would have been extra work for the faculty. Then, why not an hour with the victrola? There has been much brag before the parents about the good records bought by the school with funds raised by the children. When are these records used? The story of an opera well told and accompanied with the music would arouse a desire to know more of the art.

Some children from all rooms took hours of playtime, going from house to house to collect papers when they would rather have been playing ball. The next morning they were making several trips with their little wagons and straggling in after the job was completed, each confident that he would be rewarded for his labor.

When the count was made and just one room was dismissed, picture the disappointment of each child not in that room who had worked hard! Will this tend to educate that child to work for reward again? The next day several complaints were registered by the neighbors that children had annoyed them by ringing their door bells repeatedly and asking for waste paper.

Burning up the situation: First, a premium was placed on leaving school early; second, children worked for a reward which they did not receive; third, children annoyed the residents of that district; fourth, children lost their playtime in the sunlight in order to lift heavy papers out of basements and other disordered places where they might have contracted disease; and lastly, children dismissed early were hard due home for an hour. Some put in the hour where and as they pleased (not good for such young children), and others went home to find themselves locked out (annoyance for the mother as well as inconvenience for the child).

Was all this planned for the uplifting of the children, or was it again, as is so often the case of late years in our schools, simply a question of using the children to promote some interest of the teacher?

The superintendents know these methods are practiced? If not, why don't they know? Do they approve of them? If so, why did one of them kindly give some reasons in support of them? If not, why do they permit them to be practiced?

Surely such methods were far from the original idea of collecting waste paper. The idea was to instill in the child when worked out in a sane way and when held subordinate to the pupil's development, to the business of the school, to the duty of the principal and teachers who are employed as teachers—not as junk dealers.

I WANT TO KNOW.

Clean Up the Alleys.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

Is there nothing that can be done about the garbage in the alleys? It is set out in old pans and buckets and then gets upst.

Have we no Health Inspectors? Also wagons are left standing over night without lights in the same alley where people have to go through to get to their garages. The alley I have in mind is the one between Finney avenue and Cook.

A HOUSEWIFE.

Keep the Crowd Moving.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

Referring to the articles appearing in your paper entitled "A Lunch Hour Nuisance," and the "protest" signed by "A Young Blood," wish to say that I am heartily in accord with the idea of breaking up this clique of "young bloods."

If the "young blood" who works in an office is so fond of fresh air why doesn't he try taking a walk during his noon hour? It would be far more beneficial than standing around looking "ten over." If this party has never heard any remarks made to decently dressed young ladies who tend strictly to their own business, he must stand down near the river front, or else is hard of hearing. It is evident that his eyesight is not impaired, for he has noticed, those few who he claims do not wear enough clothes, etc.

Let's break up this crowd on the busy streets—If the young bloods must stand, why not give them some side street to park on?

AN OBSERVER.

MR. LOWDEN'S MISSOURI INVESTMENT.

Gov. Lowden's investment of $38,000 in Missouri has caused anxiety in some quarters, indignation in others, and it may be feared, has provoked a rather harsh judgment upon several eminent persons who were entrusted with the details of placing the money on the right colors or combinations. That judgment is impetuous and mathematically may be shown to be unjust.

In the light of the senatorial investigation of the presidential primaries we are able to pursue some interesting analytical tangents. As a matter of actuarial fact it may be asserted that the Lowden flyer of $38,000 in Missouri was the most fruitful investment in the presidential gamble. It was the one best bet. For from that $38,000 the Governor of Illinois procured 33 delegates, the cost per delegate being $1150. Had Mr. Lowden fared as well elsewhere as he did in Missouri he would today be a richer and possibly a happier man, and a good deal nearer the nomination. But he didn't. All told, he got rid of some $400,000, which netted him a total of 65 delegates, at a per capita cost, manifestly, of $6150, or more than five times the Missouri price. Clearly, Mr. Lowden has no grievance against Missouri or his Missouri trustees, according to the grim, unemotional figures.

And if we compare Mr. Lowden's Missouri experience with that of the other contestants we shall be even more impressed with the generous, neighborly spirit our State has shown the Illinois executive. There is Gen. Wood, whose managers admit having expended $1,180,000, with further admissions in the offing, one might suspect. But accepting the incomplete Wood returns as final, we find that his 110 delegates were acquired by the General at $10,727 per delegate, which is almost 10 times the price at which Missouri's delegates were obtained for Mr. Lowden.

Further, it is unnecessary either for Missouri or Mr. Lowden to flame with shame or pale with fright when the accusative gaze of Hiram Johnson is turned their way. Have we not learned that the California Senator was obliged to cultivate the spontaneous Johnson sentiment with fairly copious golden showers? The Johnson cabal, conspiracy, camorra, or whatever the Old Guard calls it, has confessed to disbursing $200,000 in the process of accumulating 112 delegates, and it is possible that the final Johnson audit may show a considerably larger total. Be that as it may, on the face of the returns Senator Johnson's delegates have cost him $1785 apiece, or more than 50 per cent more than the parsimonious rate established by Gov. Lowden in Missouri.

It may be remarked, too, that had the price for delegates which Missouri established been observed by the other states, it would have been possible for any candidate to have acquired the majority necessary to nominate at Chicago for $576,950—a price which could stand comparison with the prevention costs of any successful Republican candidate since, and including, the tumultuous year of 1896.

So, instead of deserving opprobrium, it would seem, from the analysis, as if Messrs. Morse, Babler, Goldstein, Essen and the impostor who masqueraded as Mr. Moore should be acclaimed for the thrift and skill with which they sowed the Lowden dollars in Missouri. They delivered the goods at rock-bottom rates, a fact which this impartial survey exposes.

HOW MANY CITY MACHINES?

Mr. Minnis speaks of two St. Louis machines, the Kiel-Schmoll machine and the Nat Goldstein machine. But in addition to these two machines there seems to be a third, the one run by Collector Koeln. With the Goldstein machine supporting Spencer for Senator, the Kiel-Schmoll and the Koeln machines are supporting Dwight Davis. The Kiel-Schmoll machine, of course, supports Schmoll for Sheriff, but the Koeln machine is supporting Charles E. Morstadt for that office. The several machines also differ on the ticket of Judges, on the selection for Public Administrator and on other questions.

These differences are encouraging. The more the One Big Machine of former days is reassembled into small machines and the more they fight over the spoils of office, the better it will be for the public and the brighter the prospect of an improvement at the city hall.

PRISON TASK PUNISHMENTS.

Mrs. Kate O'Hare, pleading for better conditions for women prisoners at the State Penitentiary, says: Many of the women who are sent there are industrially inefficient and are physically incapable of performing the tasks assigned them, but they are punished for their inability.

The first punishment is a denial of mail and the hour's recreation at night for a week. The second punishment is the denial of the evening meal for a week and the third punishment is confinement from Saturday to Monday on bread and water.

The next punishment is confinement in the "bunk" cell which is little better than a dungeon. When I went there the blind cell had no furniture and just one blanket. Women were frequently placed there from 15 to 20 days.

Punishments of this kind must have the effect of still further reducing the efficiency of the women so punished. Denial of mail and recreation would result in mental depression. Denial of the evening meal would weaken the body, and confinement in a dark cell on bread and water would complete the depreciation of mind and body.

Efficiency would be better attained through a system of rewards for work accomplished. The mental effect of such a system would be the opposite of that now in force. It should be the policy of the State to so treat the unfortunate inmates of the State prison that they will be benefited, morally and physically, by the discipline they have undergone.

PRACTICES THAT ARE JUSTLY CENSURED.

Twelve American lawyers, including ex-Judges and six professors of law at leading universities, find grave causes for complaint in the methods pursued against so-called radical aliens. Their report, entitled "Illegal Practices of the United States Department of Justice," directs attention to various departures, not merely from lawfulness, but even from semblance.

Many of the things specified were a natural result of the indiscriminate and wholesale arrests made by departmental agents. Dragnet methods were followed, differing little from those of a politically controlled City Police Chief trying to impress the unthinking with a show of vigilance and efficiency. With the departmental heads evincing so little regard for individuals and individual rights, what could be expected of underlings? The use of blackjacks to break up meetings and the cruel treatment accorded persons after being taken into custody were to be expected.

With the number under arrest greatly exceeding the normal accommodations for prisoners, these unfortunate persons, including many against whom the charge of radicalism and even of alienism could not be sustained, had to be confined in nondescript places never intended for human occupancy. That they incurred great inconvenience and suffering is undoubted.

The report embodies only a just view of facts that are unquestioned. That Federal prestige should have been brought so into disrepute is lamentable. Public opinion must make its condemnation so unmistakable and even severe that such practices shall never again be attempted in free America.

Not being a candidate for anything himself this year, Mayor Kiel is not interested in candidacies; in fact, is almost out of politics. All he figures on doing is to dictate the choice for United States Senator, for Governor, for Sheriff and for a few places on the Circuit bench.

FOREST CONSERVATION—LEGISLATION.

This is a Paper Age. In 1919 the production of all kinds of paper in the United States alone was nearly 6,200,000 tons, or 115 pounds per capita. In news print alone, according to a report of the American Paper and Pulp Association, the annual consumption has increased from 3 pounds per capita in 1880 to not less than 35 pounds in 1920. And wood being the principal ingredient in paper manufacture, the need of comprehensive legislation to conserve the present supply and provide for the future is obvious.

It is generally admitted that reforestation is not feasible for private interests, the return on investment being unattractive. The tree planter is a public benefactor, but in most instances the service is mainly for the coming generation. We cannot afford, however, to contemplate our children and posterity generally in dire need of wood and its products because of our wasteful methods and failure to provide for the future. No further argument for reforestation is necessary. As the work is a public work, all that is needed is the proper legislation. The American Paper and Pulp Association has drawn up a program for such legislation, which includes:

A permanent annual Federal appropriation of $1,000,000, to be expended in co-operation with the states, for forest protection, care and management, and the distribution of forest planting material. A permanent annual appropriation of $500,000 for a complete survey of all lands suitable for reforestation. A permanent annual appropriation of $3,000,000 for the acquisition of new forest areas, especially the watersheds of navigable streams in New England and the Appalachians. The extension of general authority to the Secretary of Agriculture to deal with forest land adjoining existing national forests. An appropriation sufficient to insure replanting where needed and for forest research. An extension of the farm loan act to encourage private owners in the protection and improvement of wood lands.

The total cost is estimated at $6,000,000 annually. The program also includes proposed state legislation. Without adequate co-operation on the part of the states, it will be impossible to bring about the desired end. Especially in the matter of fire protection, the states can do very much to insure our future timber supply.

Now let Congress get to work. No time is to be lost in a project where the handicap of nature's slowness and the cumulative results of man's wastefulness and apathy must be met and overcome.

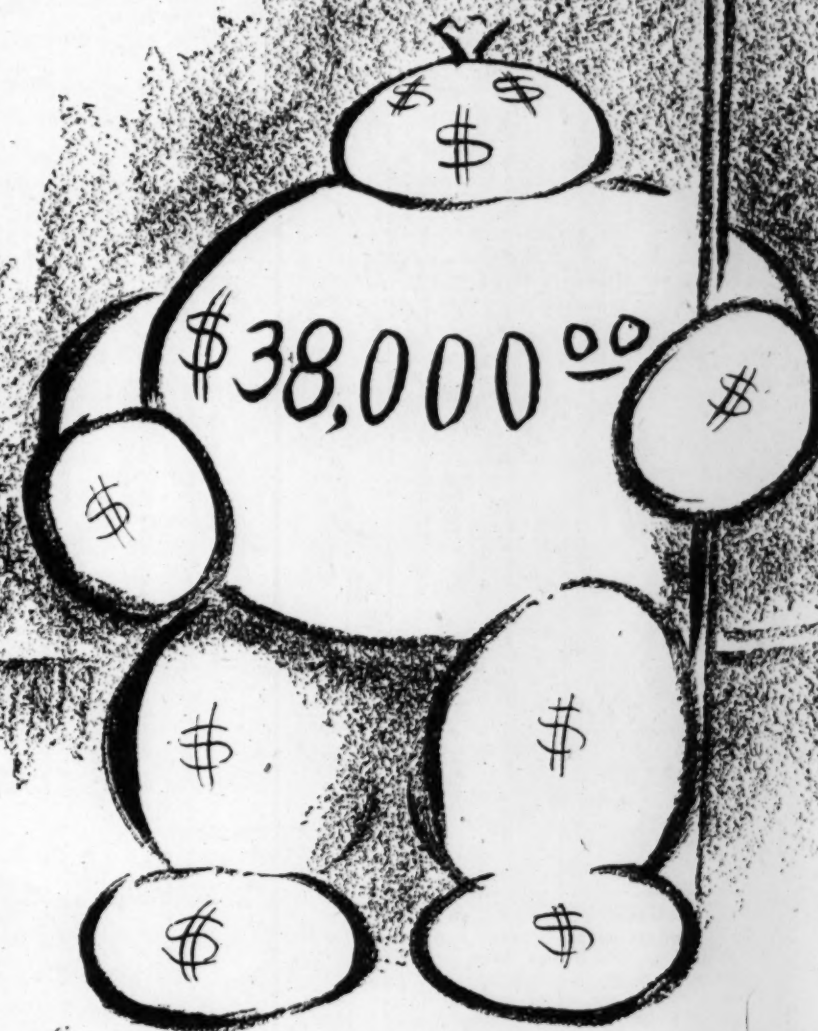

Politics grow more complex daily. Will the nominees of the other parties adopt the Debs custom of kissing the members of the notification committee? Will this result in a greater or a smaller number of women seeking places on that committee? Will this not tend to make candidates with full beards of the Hughes type less popular?

MR. ANTWINE'S OPINION.

"It looks to me as if the country may be in a fair way to see a new party born," Mr. Antwine said.

"The Chicago convention isn't going to do anything to make the conservatives and progressives shake hands across the Mississippi River. That division is so deep-seated that it may become acute at Chicago next week. Hi Johnson says he won't bolt, but the dissatisfaction of the West is more significant than the moods of Hi Johnson."

"Let us say the expose as to how delegates have been bought for the Chicago convention destroys the eligibility of Wood and Lowden and that Knox is nominated? Does anyone imagine the West is going to take the back trail behind Knox? One would as well ask the people of California to move back East. There is in the West a spirit of rebellion against taking its political orders from the East. Just as there is rebellion in the Mississippi Valley against being economically ordered from the East. These are big dogs to be wagged by such a little tail, and the task at Chicago is not a happy one. I can't for the life of me see how the party is going to rivet itself together again."

"The prospect at Frisco is scarcely better. Mr. Bryan seems almost certain to make something of a summer chautauqua of it. He has so many sacred things to put over that the party is almost sure to lose its profane solidarity. The convention looks as if it might merge with the interchurch movement and stand on the Ten Commandments."

"Nor is that all the heaven working in the Democratic party. There are many Democrats who do not like the party's Southern front, a hopeless anachronism until it can be broken up. It is against the spirit of modern democracy—against woman suffrage, the abolition of child labor, and goodness knows what that belongs to the past."

"Look out for an upheaval in this troubled matter. It would not surprise me to see it begin at Chicago next week. The stage seems to be set for it."

It looks as if Mr. Bryan were going to make a summer chautauqua of the Frisco convention.

SAYINGS OF A SIMPLE SOPH.

A handsome man is usually like a traveling salesman; he always has a "fine line."

A man's idea of cleverness is often a woman's conception of meanness.

Lowden, Wood et al. evidently think that in politics you can't "say it with flowers."

The past theatrical reason convinced me that a man cannot go into a reverie about women unless he is smoking.

Why doesn't someone write a song entitled "You're a Single Mile From Nowhere When You're a Million Miles From Home?"

Helen Rowland's Widow-cisms would cause havoc with young girls' hearts.

If they didn't know so much themselves, young men spend more time looking for a "good marriage" than a good job.

Some women are sensitive, and not sensible.

For every neglected husband there are registered wives. Women drying their hair in the back yard are a surer sign of spring than is the song of birds.

AL LEVIN.

Sir: A certain venerable pastor is still wondering why his church attendance has suddenly dropped.

During a recent fashion bazaar a spindle-legged spinster asked his opinion of "those awful open-work stockings."

"Why," he said, "our duty is plain. They should be made to take them off."

One of our readers says the Democratic slogan in the forthcoming campaign can be Billy Mc-Will-Do.

Sir: Some amateur has been poaching on my preserves, which you awarded me with my number a long time ago. South Broadway is mine. Here are a few more from that classic locality: Stencilled on a German helmet in a museum window:

by Sergeant _____

"Pretend?" Does he mean pretend?

Wistful?

In a grocery store:

Hebe Honey Bee can milk _____

Sounds like some rural swain boasting of his sweetheart's dairymaid ability, doesn't it? Means two different brands of condensed stuff, the clerk said.

In the same store:

Crappated apples _____

Must be Ben Davis pith balls to get shot up like that.

Way down near Carondelet, in a restaurant window:

If you don't eat here we both starve.

You might, at that.

In a jeweler's window:

Opill rings.

I asked the clerk in a kindly, admonitory manner if he did not mean "opall."

He told me with high voltage that if I did not like the way he described his property I could "Go to hell."

So I went away from there. Sign hunting is never monotonous if you go about it right.

This one deserves to be bracketed with "Liberty Cabbage." It is in a chow dump window down near the Barracks:

Gosh, I'll bet he hates the Hun.

Now, please keep that gink off my beat.

APOTHEOSIS.

EARTH, who would suck me of my substance dry.

And Nature, which would use me for your purpose, I Submit, nor would I strive or cry.

For one by one your children feel your power, And to each one there comes the fateful hour, When you your sons remorselessly devour.

I am an eater, too, and fine and good

I found and used you as my daily food.

Now, Eater, eat this eater, as an eater should.

Take me and make me, soul and simple clay, Food for your newer eaters in their day.

Who, like myself, shall, eaten, pass away.

Thus in this sacrament both priest and host

Shall find to the last morsel, body and ghost,

Apotheosis to the uttermost.

THE BLOCKADE AGAINST RUSSIA.

W. C. REDFIELD in the Nation's Business.

WE are nearer to Russia than we stop to think. No man who wears a linen collar or shirt, no woman who uses a linen handkerchief or towel, no home where there are linen tablecloths and napkins, but is related through these commonplace things to the economic problem created by the absence of Russian flax from the markets of the world. The absence also of Russian calskins is reflected in the price of father and the cost of shoes. The bread we have today eaten reflects in its cost the absence of Russian wheat. The chemical industries feel seriously the lack of Russian platinum. The blockade against Russia should be removed for the Soviet authorities are making that blockade a prop to sustain their failing fortunes. They charge to the blockade all the ills which are the results of their own incompetence and wrong doings. With the removal of the blockade this resource will be taken away. Little trade is likely to ensue for the Russian transportation system has broken down, and save for such limited quantities of goods as may be here and there found at or near a seaport, there is no possibility of transporting materials on any considerable scale.

THE WAR-RUINED NEED OUR AID.

From the New York Times.

REPORTS of the unwillingness of Congress to take up the plan of Mr. Davidson to help make Central and Eastern Europe a going concern should not discourage anybody. That was precisely the effect to be looked for at first. It is evident that few Congressmen have a discriminating grasp of the plan. They speak of it as a charity, whereas it is put forward not only as a duty but as an enlightened policy. It is not a project to give away food or clothes or medicines, but of making a long-time investment which will produce immediate results, in countries ruined by the war, in the shape of mills running, operations paid, goods made. The need of impressing all this upon Washington is so obvious that we take it for granted that Mr. Davidson and his associates are preparing to do it. Sometimes it seems as if it required a surgical operation to get a new idea into the head of Congress, but persistent explanation and urging of the facts will usually suffice.

Give me judicial justice. ## PROVIDENCE

by Will Payne

THIRD INSTALLMENT.

THE city editor smiled slightly and wanly in apology and continued with a sort of helplessness. "A man's mind is a queer sort of contrivance. He thinks he's running it—but maybe he isn't." This Moon Cafe had come up before in connection with an item of police news. Tower had said they better let the Moon Cafe alone, for he approved of it himself. He said it was a very convenient place to meet a lady if she was shy, because she could slip down the alley to the back door and nobody could see her. Young Wilkins got of gaped at me in that fishy way he has after Tower said it, and I knew there was something on his mind.

"Well, Tower came into the local room yesterday afternoon and talked a while as usual. Then he said he had to go because he had a date to meet a little lady at the Moon at a quarter to 4. He said it with that sort of half-secret grin and leer at me, you know. Some of the boys called Bessie 'the little lady.' I was working away at my desk, and I kept on after he went out. But somehow I couldn't keep the Moon Cafe out of my mind—a dirty kind of place, you know, and Tower a dirty kind of a dog. She's so sweet and clean and dainty—and that joint and Tower. Something seemed to break. All of a sudden I saw red. A year or more ago the police gave one of the boys a fine revolver that they'd confiscated, and he gave it to me. I put it in my desk and practically forgot it. I saw red and slipped that gun in my pocket and put on my hat and coat and went out. Of course, I meant to go down there and find and kill him, if it was so. I wasn't running my mind as much as I thought I'd been.

"I must have gone over to State street and down to Van Buren. Anyway, that's where I came to, as you may say. I was going to cross the street there. It was murky, you know; you couldn't see far. There were some people going out from the curb to take a street car. One of them was a woman. She had on a sort of faded brown coat and a cheap hat. She was holding a little boy by the hand—leading him out to the street car. He had on a coat that was too big for him, as though an older child had worn it, and a round cloth cap. He had a toy in his hand—a little 5-cent jumping jack—and his face was round; he had brown eyes. They were poor, you see. I had to wait a minute, for the street car was coming up. The boy looked up at me and held up his jumping jack for me to see. It seemed to me he was looking like my little boy. It seemed to me he was my little boy and the woman whose face I couldn't see was his mother."

Cochran smiled wanly, in apology, and rubbed his brow.

"I know that sounds crazy, but it's so. It seemed to me just that way. It gave me a big jolt, as though I'd been hit by a train. I felt a terrible pity for everybody in the world. What I was doing seemed terribly sad and foolish. Probably I can't make it clear to you. I kept right on in the way I'd been going—but slowly, my mind all confused. When I came to the alley where I had meant to turn down I just kept on—over to Michigan avenue and across it. I kept saying to myself: 'You mustn't act this way; she's sweet and good; you're as bad as Tower.' But what was going in my mind didn't seem to connect up with my actions. My legs just wandered on up Michigan avenue and pretty soon I went over and sat on a bench in the park. It was cold and I was half frozen, and I kept saying to myself: 'You're wrong to act this way.' But somehow I didn't dare go home for fear she might not be there.

"I sat on the bench until after 5. Then I went over to the elevated and home. When I opened the door she was there, and when I saw her I knew she was sweet and good, and something terribly wrong had happened in my mind—as though a man thinks he's in perfect health and a doctor looks him over and says: 'You're full of bichloride of mercury; you'll be dead tomorrow.' I lay awake most of the night thinking of it. That's the absolute truth. Of course, this morning I saw he had been killed."

Hinton listened to this recital in an amazement so profound it seemed he could never get out of it, but must remain engulfed in a bottomless chasm of astonishment the rest of his life. His office was at the angle of the hall. The telephone editor's office was next to it. Then came the belittled den of Pop Farrell, the exchange editor, and after that the "local" room, with the city editor's desk in the corner. From Hinton's desk to the city editor's desk was not much more than 50 feet; from the north wall of his room to the south wall of the local room was a matter of 80 feet or so. He had lived under the illusion of being in intimate touch with all that went on in that space and of having its occupants always under his eyes! Yet just there, under his nose, a poignant tragedy had staged itself and unfolded, gradually, act after act, to a bloody climax—all unknown to him, although he had been almost holding hands with the actors in it. It seemed he could never get over the amazement in which the discovery plunged him.

But the problem was exigent, he had to think. He believed Cochran thought he was telling the absolute truth. All the same there was a question in the back of the editor's head—namely, when a man is in the state that Cochran had been in the afternoon before, how accurately would his mind register his actions? Might he have turned down that alley, lurked and fired a shot and his disordered mind afterwards have palmed off on him the illusion of a woman and a boy? That question lay in the back of the editor's head. But in any event he saw how slim a defense this story would be. Cochran knew where Tower had gone; he had put a gun in his pocket and started down there—and then just disappeared in the murk. A reasonable man could hardly expect the police and State's Attorney to swallow that.

The city editor spoke again, with infinite reluctance. "When I went home, you see, I still had that gun in my pocket. It made me feel ashamed and false to her. I'd acted like a dog. That's the truth. Finally Tower had got that wrong stuff into my head. I lay awake most of the night thinking of it. It seemed to me that if only this could be wiped off the slate—buried out of sight, you know—and I could have another chance—I'd do better. It seems to me I couldn't bear to look her in the face again—if this comes out."

His own unhandsome face puckered up, as from bodily pain. "If you can help me, Mr. Hinton, I wish you would," he went on, in an utterly simple-hearted but poignant appeal. "You see, what happened was all in my own mind. Something wrong got in there. It was wrong—terribly wrong—a black crime. I admit, she being what she is and I being what I am and she having married me. I admit it was a black crime, but thought rather wildly of kidnapping young Wilkins until after the inquest, but Wilkins had already tattled; the police would follow that up.

He could exert a strong influence in official circles, but official circles could not be expected to turn their backs on such circumstantial evidence in a sensational murder case. No doubt he could procure an adjournment of the inquest, but how would that help? The police already had enough of the story so that it might leak into print at any moment.

Hinton was beating about in that cage and the clock on his desk was ticking off the scant minutes of grace when his door opened and a shiny dome of bald head, with a fleshy face beneath it that was barred by a ragged gray mustache, thrust in, surveying the scene. Head and face appertained to Pop Farrell, the exchange editor. Seeing Hinton was alone, the exchange editor came in, lumbered over to the desk and sagged down in the chair that Cochran had just vacated. He seemed much disturbed.

"Looks as though I'd got myself in a kind of a

A moral tale for husbands, concerning wives, curiosity, and the peril of being a mere man.

It was all in my own mind. Nothing happened outside of my mind; I only left the office and walked down the street. So I think I have a right just to bury it and make it right—atone for it—without having it all brought out in public. You see what I mean."

He wetted his lips and rubbed his brow again and even when he was silent his eyes appealed. "That suggesting and suggesting and building up an air around a man—I think even now it isn't as easy to resist as you might say. I think Tower was a rotten dog to do it. Not that that excuses me, either. But I want a chance to make it good. If you can help me to keep it from being public, I wish you would."

"Why, sure I will!" Hinton replied in a hearty voice. "Certainly I will. You've got good friends who are going to stand by you—friends who can do something, too. We're going to pull this out straight!"

He spoke in tones of hearty conviction, but in fact the conviction was all in his tones—not in his mind. When he sent the city editor back to the local room with a new command to buck up and trust to his friends, a sense of helplessness fairly overwhelmed him. He simply hadn't the heart to tell Cochran the brutal truth that young Wilkins was going to testify—in exactly 42 minutes. That testimony would make a dark case for Cochran. In any event it would irretrievably bring "her" into publicity. For a minute he fix, Jack," he began, looking unhappy. He was the only member of the staff who called the editor "Jack," having known him in his journalistic swaddling clothes. But at the moment Hinton was not much interested in Pop Farrell's fix, so he answered crustily:

"What is it?"

Farrell replied with an unexpected question: "Did Tom tell you where he was yesterday afternoon?"

Herbert Wells' talk had shown that the affair was more or less common knowledge among the staff by that time, so Hinton briefly repeated Cochran's account of himself. The exchange editor listened attentively, his bald brow wrinkled in a frown, and commented: "I thought from what I'd heard this morning, that it was something like that. And I've heard that young Wilkins is going down there to tell something."

"He is—the pup!" Hinton retorted, in a smoother of useless wrath. "A mule, with his self-righteous principles! He can't let it alone. He's got to play Providence—butting in."

Farrell put a puff of smoke on the desk and observed earnestly: "That mustn't happen."

"But how are you going to help it?" Hinton demanded, wrathfully.

The exchange editor gave a tug at his ragged mustache and replied: "Well, I'll tell you—although it does put me in a sort of a fix. You see, I've known that girl since she was so high." He put a pudgy hand the height of the desk. "I'd stake my life on her. She fell in love with Tom because he's such a kind of a lonesome, helpless lobster that don't know how to get through the world alone. All the sucker knows is just to work his head off, you see. She fell in love with him mostly for that. And I guess she kind of sensed that he'd be pretty stanch and mighty fond of her—kind of rock to lean on. And he would have been if it hadn't been for Tower. There was a bird for you."

There was no hurrying up Pop Farrell. Hinton knew that, and repressed his impatience.

"A lot of us knew what was going on, Jack: a lot of us. There was a man, you see, working all he knew to poison another man's mind. We saw him put the arsenic in the coffee 10 times a day, and just sat around and grinned. It shows we're all yellow. If we'd been clean-minded, decent men we'd have killed Tower weeks ago. But you never do think of the right thing until it's too late. The louse was sore at Tom for getting her—sore at her for choosing Tom. His conceit couldn't stand that. He wanted to show off before the boys. He worked overtime trying to poison Tom. It was mostly all in the air, you know—suggesting and suggesting, to get everybody to thinking one thing—everybody around Tom, making the atmosphere he breathed."

"Well, he did get some hold of Bessie. She was foolish, I admit; but women are apt to be foolish about business and about their husbands. He let on to her that he had a tremendous pull with the owners: told her confidentially he was going to make Tom managing editor—that practically he was running the paper and not you. Of course, if he could make Tom managing editor, he could fire him, too. He didn't exactly say that, but he worked on her to make her think Tom's future was a good deal in his hands. Women are apt to be foolish about business—not really understanding. Of course, a good woman don't want to prejudice her husband's future. So she stood for a good deal that she wouldn't have stood for otherwise. Understand, he always treated her properly on the surface. He was smart enough to know he had to. But she stood for a good deal in the way of his hanging around and calling and all that—being pleasant to him, you know. And he worked that—walking into the newspaper office with her and all that."

"Then he took the bracelet Tom had given her—pretending he did it in a joke, but not giving it back all the same. She was disturbed about that, but a nice woman don't want to make a row, especially when it runs into her husband's business. She met him a couple of times to get the bracelet back, but he kept it—pretending it was all a joke. She got frightened—got a suspicion he was trying to tangle her up. Still she hated to make a row—hated saying anything to Tom. So she sent for me. That was a week tomorrow. Well, I didn't want any row or mess, either—damned old fool that I am. I told her not to be alarmed and not to bother—of course, he'd give the bracelet back. An old fathead, you see, wanting to smooth everything over and avoid trouble. I only told her the less she had to do with Tower the better."

"That was a week tomorrow. Of course, I should have told her what Tower was up to, but looking her in the face and telling her that kind of stuff when she was the woman—an old fathead, you see, wanting to slide out of it the easiest way. I just told her she better have as little as possible to do with Tower and let it go at that. But I was a good deal disturbed. It kept running in my head."

"The next afternoon, as luck would have it, a fellow came up here to see Tower. It was about 4 o'clock and there wasn't anybody in the local room at the moment, but I was in my room, so he came in there. I was about cleaned up for the day and the man interested me, so I talked to him a while. He's an Italian, you know. I've dabbled a little in the Italian language and traveled a lot over there on the map with my feet in a chair. He's got a little cheese and grocery store on the north side and a couple of days later I dropped in there and we had another talk. He talked to me pretty freely then."

The exchange editor gave a tug at his mustache and went on, with an oddly apologetic air: "He's a bandy-legged man, thick set, with a kind of bony, hungry-looking face, the skin almost dead white and deep-set, black eyes. You might say he was a glittering kind of man. He talked to me pretty freely. You see, he wanted Tower to let his daughter alone. That's what he wanted. I felt mighty sorry for him, knowing Tower as well as I did."

"Well, yesterday afternoon as Tower was going out of the local room, I heard him say he had a date with a 'little lady' at the Moon Cafe. The boys had called Bessie 'the little lady.' Of course, I knew well enough it wasn't Bessie. But I knew Tower's game, too. I was awfully disgusted and sore and in a few minutes I put on my hat and coat and started home. When I was going out of the building I met my Italian coming in, and I just up and said to him that Tower wasn't in; that he'd gone to keep an appointment with a woman at the Moon Cafe. I just up and said that—but I wouldn't wonder if that was enough. You see, having up and said that puts me in a kind of a fix, so I can't very decently do anything myself. But I want you to get the inquest postponed and send a reporter to ask the Italian where he was yesterday afternoon. I believe that will start something."

Before Hinton could reply the door opened and the city editor entered, in a breathless sort of way, his broad, unhandsome face shining joyously. He was holding a sheet of thin yellow paper containing a bulletin from the local press association which read:

"Antonio Muranti has confessed to the police that he shot George Tower yesterday afternoon. He will plead the unwritten law."

Hinton's eye swiftly took it up. He sprang up, beaming, and clapped the city editor on the shoulder, crying: "I knew it would come out right! It had to!"

Pop Farrell, having read the bulletin, rubbed his bald head and observed: "If ever a man worked hard for those wages that George Tower collected yesterday afternoon, that man was Tower. After all, there may be more in this Providence business than you think for."

THE END.

Fables for the Fair

By Marguerite Mooers Marshall.

THERE was only one reason in the world.

Why they shouldn't have Lohengrin down the main aisle of the church.

While mother and Aunt Luella sniffed comfortably in a corner pew.

And all the bride's friends said, "How pale she looks!"

And all the groom's friends said, "Lucky dog!" and thought, "Poor slob!"

There was only one reason in the world.

Why they shouldn't have been married by bell and book.

Their families would have been delighted.

She had landed a play on Broadway which ran for a whole season.

He did pretty-girl covers for half the 20-cent magazines.

Nevertheless he had subscribed secretly to the sentiment that he travels fastest who travels alone.

However, despite their ideas, they fell in love with each other fathoms deep.

Why they ducked wedding cake, white roses, bridesmaids, best man, winking mother, rice showers, honeymoon at Palm Beach, a vast side flat with a proffering bride's maid.

All the joys, sorrows, boredom—yet solid and sweet satisfactions—of matrimony.

That's what they talked to Hoboken.

And had the knot tied by a J. P. of Teutonic extraction—

The port in storm for the doubly divorced, who find ministers absurdly scrupulous about performing the marriage ceremony.

He was used to accepting hush money for keeping secrets.

The happy pair sought their respective domiciles.

And practiced periodic, or part time, matrimony for the next five years.

They made engagements by telephone for dinner—or breakfast;

Now and then they slipped off for a week-end.

(New York is no argus-eyed village!)

But she kept her own name and went on writing plays.

While he kept the latchkey to his bachelor apartment.

There was, as I have several times intimated, one REASON!

At the end of five years she had written the Great American Drama—

She said so herself;

And he felt quite ready to enter the business of painting $10,000 portraits.

It was, in short, the psychological moment.

They announced their marriage!!!

With all its modern improvements!

Every press agent in New York gnashed his oh her teeth with envy and rage.

The papers printed columns—interviews, statements, discussions, editorials, letters, photographs;

Inside 24 hours a dozen managers were bidding for the blushing bride's play;

And the wife of every war millionaire was choosing the dress in which "my husband, the portrait painter," should "do" her.

Nothing succeeds like notoriety! Yes, indeed, there WAS one reason.

For the unfettered unconventionality of our happy pair's domestic arrangements—

It pays to advertise!

Mrs. Kayoko Yajima, 57 years of age, will represent Japan at the International Conference of Woman's Temperance Societies to be held in the United States. Fourteen years ago she represented Japan at the same conference held in America.

Mrs. Margaret L. Smith, Republican member of the New York Assembly from Harlem district, who recently wielded the axel at a night session of the Legislature, has the distinction of being the first woman to ever preside over that body of lawmakers.

New York City has more than 50,000 organized working women.

The Woman's City Club of Washington, D. C., now has more than 250 members.

Finding that her salary as teacher in New York's public schools was inadequate for her to live on properly, Mrs. Lillian S. Sanders resigned and went in for automobile repairing and now she is service manager of a tire station in Nyack, N. Y.

The women employed in the various departments in the New York City municipal government offices recently refused to have their working hours curtailed, claiming that they did not desire the hours of the men and women workers separated.

An honor seldom won by an American woman has fallen to Ethel Blanchard Collier of Boston, who has had a picture painted by her selected for exhibition in the Spring Paris Salon.

BURGESS BEDTIME STORIES

By Thornton W. Burgess.

A Queer Little Plowman

"YESTERDAY," began Old Mother Nature. "I told you about two little haymakers who live in the high mountains of the Far West. Who are they, Peter Rabbit?"

"Little Chief Hare, the Pika or Cony, and Stubtail the Mountain Beaver or Skunkie," replied Peter with great promptness.

"Right," said Old Mother Nature. "Now I am going to tell you of one of my little plowmen who also lives in the Far West, but prefers the great plains to the high mountains. He is a Tortoise, who is a land-loving cousin of Spotty the Turtle, a Gopher."

"Does Grubby have pockets in his cheeks like mine?" asked Striped Chipmunk eagerly.

"He has pockets in his cheeks, and that is why he is called the Pocket Gopher, but those pockets are not at all like yours, Striped Chipmunk. Yours are on the inside of your cheeks, but his are on the outside," replied Old Mother Nature.

"How funny!" exclaimed Striped Chipmunk.

"Your pockets are small compared with Grubby's," continued Old Mother Nature. "Each of his covers almost the whole side of his head back to his short neck, and is lined with fur. Grubby uses these for carrying food, never for carrying earth out of his tunnels as some folk think. He stuffs them full with his front feet and empties them by pressing from the back end with his feet. The Pocket Gopher family is quite large, and the members range in size from the size of Danny Meadow Mouse to the size of Robber the Rat. Only these bigger members are stouter and heavier than Robber. Some are reddish brown and some are gray. But the habits of all, no matter what their size or where they live, are the same."

All this time Peter Rabbit had been fidgeting about it. It was clear that Peter had something on his mind. Now, as Old Mother Nature paused, Peter found the chance he had been waiting for. "Why do you call Grubby a plowman?" he asked eagerly.

"He plugs up the opening and goes back to digging. The loose earth he has pushed out makes little mounds and there is one of these every few feet. Do any of you know why Farmer Brown plows his garden?"

"No one did, so Old Mother Nature continued. "It is to loosen the earth and mix with it the dead vegetable matter so that the roots of plants may get it easily. By making these tunnels in every direction and bringing up earth to the surface Grubby does the same thing. That is why I call him my little plowman. He loosens the hard packed earth and mixes with it the vegetable matter, so making it easy for seeds to sprout and plants to grow."

The Husband of the Advocate of Equal Rights When They Pack.

"I'm coming to that all in due time," replied Old Mother Nature, smiling at Peter's eagerness. "Grubby spends most of his life underground, very much like Miner the Mole, whom you all know. He can dig tunnels just about as fast as he can dig. His front legs and feet are very stout and strong. They are armed with long, very strong claws. It is with these and the help of his big cutting teeth that Grubby digs. He throws the earth under him and then kicks it behind with his hind feet. When he has quite a pile behind him he turns around and with his front feet and head pushes it back to a little side tunnel and then up to the surface of the ground. As soon as it is all out,

The Greatest Menace To Womanly Beauty Is Nervousness.

By Pauline Furlong.

A RECENT letter from an anxious reader tells me that she is so worried about herself because she imagines every one is trying to hurt her feelings and that no one really likes her, etc., and asks me what she can do to improve her disposition and thereby cultivate some personality.

In the case of this unfortunate reader, I should imagine she is just another poor sufferer from so-called "nerves," and to try to build up her general health, through some sensible and hygienic method, would be the very first step toward improving her condition.

Nervousness is the greatest menace to womanly beauty and when this condition is allowed to develop into neurasthenia, hysteria, neuritis and other serious forms of this disease without being checked, it is liable to wreck one's personal beauty beyond repair.

Happily, this is the best time of the year for any sufferer to begin to build up her health, because the beautiful warm spring days are so alluring that it is almost impossible to remain indoors, and fresh air is the most essential thing conducive to health. For disturbed nerves long walks are far better than drives, because if you are not weak you may walk briskly and stimulate your breathing capacity. Fill your lungs with fresh air and oxygen at every little opportunity and you will see a decided improvement in your complexion as well as your nerves and general health.

Learn to cultivate deep abdominal breathing through the nostrils. One can always tell the shallow breather after acquiring the habit of proper breath control. Imagine you are in a garden filled with rare flowers and drink in their delicious odors until fairly touch your toes. Do this at any convenient time and it will become a habit before you realize it.

Try deep breathing for insomnia, indigestion and other common disorders, as well as for beauty, and you will be more than gratified at the results you attain.

Every war has produced its heroines as well as heroes. Notable among the heroines of the Russo-Japanese war was Miss Ando Yoshi. A young seller of rice cakes, at Port Arthur, who stole the Russian war maps, disguised herself as a soldier and carried them safely to the Japanese consul at Peking.

MORE TRUTH THAN POETRY

By James J. Montague.

LOVELY WOMAN.

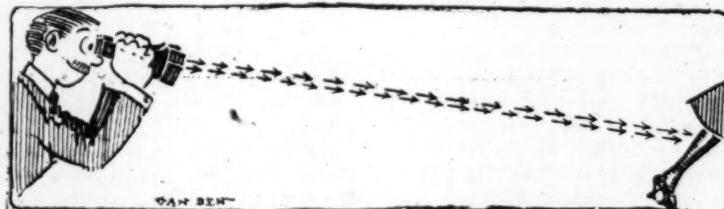

She knows the parson thinks her clothes expose too much of silken hose, That he declares the waist she wears Are dreadfully improper; She frequently has heard him say that if he only had his way He'd straightaway draw and pass a law Whose aim would be to stop 'er. She smiles an acquiescing smile, But dresses in the same raw style.

She knows about her doctor's views on tilted heels and pinching shoes. She also knows that narrow toes Are painful and unsightly. She's heard him say with scathing scorn that silly corsets that are worn Straight up and down beneath the gown Compress the ribs too tightly. These facts she's ready to admit, But that don't change her style a bit.

She knows that scientists profound say eating candy by the pound, By subtle stealth breaks down the health, And ruins the complexion. She knows they say that that's the way to bring on premature decay, That even teeth break down beneath The onslaught of confections. And yet she frequents, as before, The smart confectionery store.

At twenty-two or twenty-three these female ways affected me

Beyond control; they filled my soul With bitter melancholy. In lifting verse and ringing prose, I scolded them about their clothes, And by and by I hoped that I Might wean them from their folly. But now I'm older, I confess I rather like the way they dress.

Turning the Joke.

As the would-be wit strolled through the town he saw a notice in a store window.

"If you don't see what you want in the window come in and ask for it."

"I don't see what I want in this window," he announced, entering the establishment.

"Well, then, ask for it," said the storekeeper invitingly.

"I've tried all over the town in vain," said the visitor sadly.

"What is it?" The proprietor was eager on the quest. "I have a better stock than any other store of this kind in the place."

"Well, it's this way. I've found so many smart men in this town that I am in search of a first-class idiot."

Without hesitating, the proprietor turned to a clerk with the order: "James, bring a large sheet of brown paper and make this gentleman up into a nice parcel!"—London Tid-Bits.
